Reds Crush Nazi Forces At Staraya

Russian Fliers, Guns Break Up Attempts to Bring Supplies Into Area
Army Is Lost
Reds Declare German 16th Army Can Not Be Saved

Moscow, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Russians declared today they had defeated reserves which the Germans were hurling into the flaming battle of the Staraya Russa area, where a Soviet ring of destruction closed tighter upon survivors of the smashed Nazi 16th army.

One of the reserve units said to have been beaten when it attempted to break through to aid the trapped troops was identified as the 56th Regiment of the German Fifth Division.

Dispatches from the front said Russian fliers and anti-aircraft guns were breaking up attempts by the Germans to bring supplies into the Staraya Russa area by transport plane.

The Russians said captured German orders disclosed that 96,000 troops had been caught in the Staraya Russa trap.

"They are disintegrating," a dispatch said. "Their situation is hopeless."

On the southwestern front, too, the Russians reported decisive victories over German and Rumanian forces.

The first Rumanian division was declared routed, with more than 2,250 killed and 200 surrendered.

The Rumanians formed the center of a counter attack which was launched with German troops on the flanks and bringing up the rear, Russian dispatches said. The attack was reported stopped by terrific artillery fire.

Pounding Nazis
On the Staraya Russa front Red artillerymen also were said to be pounding the trapped Nazis with heavy fire, sometimes at ranges of only a quarter-mile.

The 290th German Division was said to have lost heavily from shelling.

The Russians said the trapped 16th army was one of the German forces which pressed into Russia last year when the Nazis had the offensive.

It suffered heavily through that offensive, the Russians said, and had to be reinforced repeatedly to fill the ranks of "tens of thousands" of men it lost.

They declared that 147 settlements in the Staraya Russa area already had been won back under the Red flag.

Possible Russian War Plan

Fierce fighting at Staraya Russa indicates possible Soviet strategy in Northwest Russia. With Staraya occupied, the Reds would be in a position (arrows) to flank Germans in the Leningrad area by striking northwest toward Estonia and the Gulf of Finland, or to push toward Velikie Luki, cutting off the Nazi forces near Smolensk. Republicans Open Thrift Campaign For Governorship

Legislators to See Tuesday What Has Been Done; Little Business Tax Might End

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—Drafting of a Republican legislative plan for further reducing the state budget and eliminating an existing tax neared completion today as the party officially opened a drive for the governorship on a claim to four years of economy.

Republican amputations from Governor Lehman's new $377,000,000 financial program will be shown to the majority legislators Tuesday. All that remains for completion of the plan, an authoritative source said, is decision on the tax to be eliminated.

The levy most likely at present to be erased, this source asserted, is the so-called "tax on little business"—the emergency four per cent impost on the net income in excess of $5,000 on unincorporated business. Elimination of this levy would save taxpayers an estimated $5,000,000 annually.

Other political and legislative developments included: Declaration by Republican State Committee Chairman Edwin F. Jackie that the party seeks the gubernatorial election this fall on a record of having "forced reduction" in the Democratic governor's state budget four successive years.

Assertion by an influential G. O. P. leader that Thomas E. Dewey may have the Republican nomination for governor "any time he says the word."

Revival of a legislative controversy over immediate action on reapportionment despite leaders' earlier efforts to keep the bitter issue out of the wartime session.

Expressed expectation by legislators of adoption of revisions in the motor safety-responsibility law to relieve "innocent drivers" of having to make deposits guaranteeing ability to pay for damages.

Addressing Republican legislators, state executive committee members and G. O. P. county chairmen at a state-wide dinner last night, Jackie officially laid plank number one in the party's gubernatorial campaign.

"A change in the executive administration in this state would be a stroke of good business for the people of New York," he said. "The current administration appears to have gone to seed, probably."

Nazi Subs Hit Hard in Atlantic

Washington Takes Heart From Enemy Toll in Pacific, Despite Atlantic Losses
Raiders Pay

Navy Says Attacking U-Boats Have Been Sunk

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—The United States was exacting a punishing price from Japanese seapower for Nippon's Pacific conquests today, but German U-boats kept striking hard with frequent success in the Atlantic.

In the savage two-ocean war of attrition, the capital sought to strike a balance of the gains and losses.

The toll taken of enemy shipping in the Pacific was heartening. Army and navy reports disclosed that since December 10 a total of 74 Japanese combatant and non-combatant vessels had been sunk, seven more probably sunk and 33 damaged.

If losses on such a scale can be inflicted on Japan for the remainder of the year, naval officials indicated last night, her ultimate defeat is assured, because her shipbuilding resources are not equal to providing the necessary replacements and repairs.

In the Atlantic, however, navy strategists testified to the unrelenting vigor of the U-boat campaign. From January 1 to February 23 the number of submarine attacks on shipping of the United Nations in the western half of the ocean alone was 114 and 45 of them occurred in American coastal waters. During this period, the sinkings of 34 ships have been officially reported from Canada to the Caribbean.

Raiders Have Paid
The raiders have paid for their successes. The navy said last night it had good reason to believe that three more enemy submarines have been sunk by U. S. action in the Atlantic, and four others damaged. This was the first announcement on the subject since December 21 when Secretary Knox said that 14 undersea raiders had been destroyed or damaged.

Nevertheless, there was evident need for more effective counter measures, for Prime Minister Churchill declared on Tuesday that the shipping losses of the United Nations in the last two months had shown a "most serious increase."

Figures on the navy's work on the war of attrition against Japan were released by Secretary Knox at a press conference yesterday. He said that units of the fleet had sunk 15 combatant and 38 non-combatant ships. He listed three more combatant and four non-combatant in the believed-sunk category. In addition two combatant and three non-combatant ships were damaged.

His tabulation did not include the destruction inflicted by the army forces or by the Dutch naval and air commands. The army boosted its toll to 21 a little later with the announcement that its heavy bombers had sent two more Japanese transports to the bottom off Macassar in the southwest Pacific.

No complete accounting of Dutch successes was available, but a semi-official tabulation earlier this month credited the Netherlands with 24 certain sinkings, six probable sinkings and 11 ships damaged. The Dutch claimed to have inflicted additional losses on the foe since then.

Discusses Punishment
Discussing the punishment inflicted on the Japanese, authorized naval spokesmen asserted that "they can't keep these losses up over a year with their building program." Unless Japan can succeed in making "this a quick and fast" war, he said, she could not hope to win under such conditions.

The navy announcement of Japanese losses noted that the enemy had lost two of the three 17,000-ton luxury ships of the Yawata class—the pride of the pre-war Japanese merchant marine. One of the two ships destroyed had been converted into an aircraft carrier, and the other was a merchantman.

The question of the disastrous Normandie fire bobbed up again yesterday when Rep. Dickstein (D., N. Y.) charged in the house that the ship was "sabotaged" with a deliberate design to destroy her. He also asserted that more than 30 "Nazi agents" were employed as workmen on the ship when the fire occurred.

Congress Demands 40-Hour Week and Extra Wages End

Virginian Asks House That 17 Laws Be Suspended; Says Acts Handicap War Effort

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Work stoppages in war factories brought an angry demand in congress today for cancellation of the 40-hour week and of time-and-a-half for overtime.

Rep. Smith (D., Va.) asked the House to suspend 17 laws on the work week and overtime pay. His proposal was contained in an amendment to the second war powers bill, slated for a vote before the day was out.

Smith said the laws were "handicapping our war effort." As examples, he cited 17,000 west coast workers in 250 plants who ignored government pleas to stay on the job on Washington's birthday, and 3,000 C.I.O. shipbuilders at San Pedro, Calif., who refused to work longer than eight hours.

Lawmakers saw some hope for uninterrupted production in the new C.I.O.-A.F.L. agreement for working out problems of wages and manpower mobilization. The agreement was presented to President Roosevelt yesterday, but its terms were not disclosed.

There was concern over such work stoppages as the strike of 140 welders at the Bethlehem shipbuilding yard in Hoboken over a foreman's "use of vile and abusive names" and the 75-minute interruption at the Minneapolis Moline Power Implement Company over complaints on slow wage negotiations.

In the Senate, Senator Byrd (D., Va.) yesterday demanded the removal of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins for "inefficiency, ineptness and incapacity to meet her duties," and called for a national labor policy now.

"The aircraft which caused the blackout in the Los Angeles area for several hours this (Wednesday) morning have not been identified."

There was no elaboration as to whose aircraft, how many, from whence it (they) came, or where disappeared.

Japanese Losers In Philippines And Around Java

Fierce Battle for Burma Nears Climax With Rangoon in Flames and British Hanging on Against Great Odds at Sittang River

By ROGER D. GREENE (Associated Press War Editor)

American forces scored triumphs today in the Philippines and the Battle for Java where Secretary of War Stimson declared that the United Nations were putting up a "magnificent" defense and inflicting losses heavier than the Japanese had admitted.

Paying tribute to British Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, allied commander in the Southwest Pacific, Stimson said "we realize fully the importance of the situation in Java and we are giving every bit of aid possible."

He disclosed that General Wavell sustained a broken rib in an aircraft accident in a visit to Singapore the day before it fell, and said Wavell had wanted to fly to Bataan to visit General Douglas MacArthur.

MacArthur advised him against it because of the risk, Stimson said.

While the Americans were hitting out against the Japanese in the Philippines and from Java, the grim drama of Burma moved toward a climax with Rangoon reported in flames and British Imperial defenders holding grimly to the Sittang river line against heavy odds.

So far, the British said, there has been "no evacuation of military personnel" from Rangoon, the Burmese capital, but it was apparent little hope was held out that the city could be saved.

In Calcutta, 740 miles across the Bay of Bengal from Rangoon, the steady approach of Japan's invasion hordes through the Burma gateway to India heightened preparations for resistance.

Trenches Dug at Calcutta
Trenches were being dug in Calcutta's streets and 500 buildings in the teeming metropolis were taken over as air-raid shelters.

In the battle of the Dutch Indies, United States submarines smashing at Japan's sea-borne invaders were officially reported to have torpedoed two enemy troop transports, an auxiliary ship and a freighter, and Washington naval quarters predicted Japan's ultimate defeat at the present rate of sea losses.

A bulletin from Dutch East Indies headquarters announced the attacks occurred within the past 48 hours.

In addition, a Japanese warship, one of a squadron, was listed as "presumed" hit. The attacking United States submarine was forced to dive before it could observe the effect of its torpedo.

Amid these Allied counter-punches, the Japanese invaders appeared to have overrun most of lower Sumatra, across the 15-mile-wide Sunda Strait from Java, and also advanced down the west coast of Dutch Borneo.

In the Philippines, a bulletin from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that American and Filipino troops launched a surprise attack and hurled the Japanese back several kilometers on the Bataan peninsula.

It was the first sizeable advance from Gen. MacArthur's beleaguered defenders since they were driven into the Bataan mountain wilderness nearly two months ago.

A communique issued at 9:30 a. m., Eastern War Time, said the fighting was still in progress, with continued success for the American-Filipino attackers.

A War Department spokesman in Washington advised newsmen to "make your own interpretation" of the reversal inflicted on the Japanese. There was no suggestion, however, that reinforcements may have arrived.

On the other hand, speculation arose that heavy Japanese losses at sea may have forced Japan (Continued on Page 12)

New York Nostalgia Gets Another Jab: Defense Turns Out Gas Lamps

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Reflecting sadly that New York is not the same since the war, New Yorkers bemoaned today the passing of more landmarks and institutions.

Already bereft of the big Wrigley sign that brightened Times Square and without a single Manhattan burlesque show to cheer them up, they found:

That the city's famous gas-lit era finally had flickered out with the turning off yesterday of the last two gas street lamps.

Dimly but bravely before houses No. 8 and No. 15 MacDougal Alley in Greenwich Village, the little lamps had survived the rush to modernize the city, but a laconic electric man came yesterday and doused the lights with two uncon-

See White-Grub Damage in 1944

Bug Experts Are Making Long-Range Predictions

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 26—Watch out for white grubs in 1944. Also 1947 and 1950.

These long-range predictions are made by entomologists at the New York state college of agriculture, who base them on their knowledge of hows and whys of insect life.

It's all very easy if you know your June bugs and June-bug cycles, for the white grubs are the larval stage of this bug. Serious injury by grubs always occurs in the year following a big June-bug year.

During the past summer the white grubs caused widespread injury to pastures, meadows, lawns, golf courses, and to various cultivated crops. In several areas the potato crop was greatly reduced, says H. H. Schwartz of the entomology department.

Most seriously affected areas have been in Clinton and Essex, and counties of the southern tier from Chautauque to Sullivan. Smaller areas have been found in Erie, Niagara, Monroe, Wayne, Tompkins, Onondaga, Oneida, Herkimer, Washington, Saratoga, and Schenectady counties.

The experts know that three years are required for the complete development of a grub, therefore white grub damage would come the third year. It came this year. It is expected again in 1944.

The entomologists recommend that where large flights of June bugs occur in a given year, row crops should not follow the next year. They point out that the control of grubs in lawns and golf courses is difficult and expensive. Applications of lead arsenate give satisfactory protection.

Egg Production To Attain Goals

New York Not Yet in Full Swing but Nation Ahead

Albany, Feb. 26—Egg production on New York farms amounted to about 12,667,000 dozen in January 1942 or about the same as a year earlier, according to a federal-state report issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. With a slight decrease of older hens, and a rather large increase in the number of 1941 hatched pullets, it is to be expected that egg production will exceed that of last year as the season advances and the pullets come into full production. The 1942 Food for Victory goal calls for a nine percent increase over 1941, when 158,667,000 dozen eggs were produced. A moderate increase in the rate of egg production per hen, together with the maintenance of the flocks by raising as many or a slightly larger number of chicks than last year should make this attainment possible. The availability of labor, as well as feed costs and wage rates in relation to egg and chicken prices will have a bearing on the accomplishment.

For the country as a whole, January 1942 production of eggs amounted to 280,900,000 dozen, about 16 percent above January 1941. This means that there has been an auspicious start in meeting the national goal for 1942, up 13 percent from 1941, when national production was about 3,392,667,000 dozen eggs.

The laying flocks in January increased by 11 percent over the past year in the United States, most conspicuous have been the addition of about 15 per cent in the South Central States and 16 per cent in the West North Central States. There are also substantially more pullets not yet of laying age, and these potential layers will swell the flocks still further as spring approaches.

Poultrymen have expressed their intention to purchase 12 percent more baby chicks in the spring of 1942 than last year, with wide variation throughout the country. Some difference between intentions and actual purchases is to be expected, depending on egg prices during the hatching season, and the feed-egg and feed-chicken price relationships. The farm labor situation may also be a factor.

Cold storage stocks of eggs on February 1 were 34 percent more than a year ago, while frozen poultry stocks were 7 percent higher.

Robbins Is Found Guilty by Jury

Sentence Will Be Imposed Friday Morning for Attempted Rape

Leander Robbins, 30, charged with attempted rape, was found guilty of the crime as charged late Wednesday afternoon by a jury which had heard the evidence in county court. Judge Conway will impose sentence on Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Robbins, colored, was found guilty of having attacked a young woman on Cornell street on the night of November 15, last, and it was also charged that he attacked a man who went to the aid of the young woman. Robbins denied that he was in the vicinity on the night of the attack although he had previously pleaded guilty to attacking and assaulting Edward DuBois when he attempted to aid the girl. Robbins pleaded guilty to assaulting DuBois when arraigned in city court a couple of days after the affair.

Wednesday afternoon George Messing was called to the stand and testified that he had found Robbins ransacking his car which was parked back of the Crystal Gardens shortly before the time of the alleged attack on the young woman. Messing said he had attempted to take Robbins out to Cornell street and turn him over to an officer but the colored man broke loose and ran up Cornell street toward Morgan's Restaurant.

Peter Bonesteel, bartender at a North Front street grill said he had not seen Robbins in the place on the evening of the assault as Robbins had testified to. On cross examination he said however that the place was crowded and Robbins could have been there. Charles Bassett also testified that Robbins came to his home on North Front street around 11 o'clock and was later arrested there by the police.

Robbins had claimed that he was never on Cornell street that night but had been uptown during the evening after spending the early evening at the colored Elks Club, Cedar street. He claimed that he had been attacked, threatened and frightened by the police into signing a statement or confession. Any attempt to secure the statement through force was denied by the police.

The jury was out but a short time when the guilty verdict was reached.

National Guard Officers Would Retain Rank

Former enlisted men of the National Guard, who have served satisfactorily as commissioned officers in the Army of the United States, have been discharged, and are now subject to induction, will return to the service as commissioned officers and not as enlisted men, Brigadier General Ames T. Brown, New York State Director of Selective Service, reported today.

General Brown said this information had been sent to him as Adjutant General by the War Department. The Secretary of War was quoted as follows:

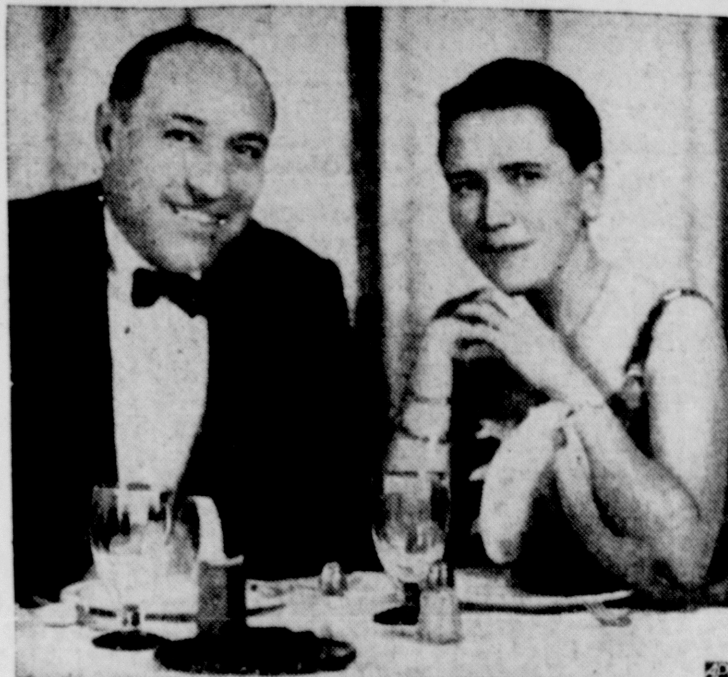

"When the services of men who have served satisfactorily as commissioned officers are requested by the proper authority, the corps area commander concerned will report the names of such enlisted men to the War Department with recommendation that they be reappointed as second lieutenants, Army of the United States. Pending action upon the recommended appointment, they will not be ordered to duty as enlisted men."

"In the case of enlisted men who have been appointed officers in the National Guard of the United States, they will be reordered to active duty as commissioned officers in the grade now held in the National Guard of the United States."

Tourist Crop Cut

Decline in the American tourist crop is Mexico's biggest immediate problem, according to officials at Mexico City. The sharp drop, caused partly by red tape involvements facing border crossers, is reported as a severe blow on proprietors of new hotels who had confidently expected a sharp increase in border travel.

SINGAPORE AND AFTER

Now, regarding the Singapore collapse that we Americans have been talking about so dolefully, and some of us perhaps with bitterness—

Maybe we were all standing at Singapore, in a way, when the little brown men overwhelmed it. Maybe our Anglo-Saxon civilization was standing there—maybe Shakespeare and Milton and Washington and Lincoln and others in a shadowy and endless line.

Not that it was the end. But it seemed a climax to so many disasters. Always good men retreating, taking blows face to face without whimpering, but walking backward. How much longer could it last for Britain, for the Empire, for us? Some Americans, too, have had a disheartened feeling of being "let down" by the British retreats, although Heaven knows our own Pearl Harbor failure was bad enough—we are still jumpy from it. And the British have been courteously silent about that.

So what? The surest thing in the world to any American or Briton who takes a realistic view of the world today is that the English-speaking race must hang together. The British need us and we need them, and the world, we venture to say, needs both. Together, in full trust and partnership, along with the heroic Dutch and Chinese and other loyal allies, we can win.

But no more retreats! From now on we must attack.

SECURITY

The American public, naturally enough, has set up a clamor for war protection. We seem to want safety everywhere for everything and everybody. And it soon becomes evident that this is an impossible ideal.

We can't protect all our borders and coasts and we can't be secure against air invasion. If we tried to attain perfect security we couldn't get anything else done, and in the effort we would lose much of the security we have. In many ways, the experts say, we shall just have to do the best we can and take chances.

One of the first things to be understood is that the main defense areas are not at home but beyond our borders. We must win on the seas and islands, in the Atlantic and Pacific and on the other side of the world. Neither our government nor our fighting men can do their job well if we keep clamoring for more domestic protection.

It is a matter of basic strategy to wage not a merely defensive war but an aggressive war, to fight the enemy where he is and beat him back to where he belongs. Our soldiers and sailors, flyers and submarine men may be trusted for that work, while we civilians keep the home fires burning and the factories and railroads running and do some defending ourselves.

HELP FOR FRIENDS

Brazil, having proved herself our good friend in the last Pan-American round-up and taken leadership in Latin-American co-operation, now asks Uncle Sam to fulfill promises given her. Axis U-boats have begun to attack shipping on the South American coast. Brazil, which has a coast-line of nearly 6,000 miles, needs help to protect it and expects to be at war soon.

We must make good with the Brazilians and all the other neighbors who join us in the active defense of this hemisphere. It is all one war now, the world over; and in America especially the rule is "each for all and all for each."

Our main job now is to arm our friends. In many cases that will suffice. In some cases we shall have to fight alongside of them. Otherwise our brave New World would be destroyed.

DESTRUCTION IN MANILA

A church built in Manila in 1588 has been destroyed by Japanese bombers. With it is gone a library of 20,000 volumes, collected by the Dominican fathers over a period of three hundred years. It included exhaustive histories of every city and town in the Philippines, and materials about the languages of the islands that would take years to gather again.

Such a loss is one of the deep tragedies of war. Bombed houses may be rebuilt, scattered wealth may be gathered again, but knowledge accumulated slowly and painfully over hundreds of years, when once gone, is only too often gone forever.

An ironical sidelight on this destruction is the fact that, only a few months before, many precious manuscripts from missions in China and Indo-China had been transferred to Manila, in the belief that they would be safer there.

HOW TO BE FAMOUS

Recently a young man, asked why he had committed an atrocious crime, said, "Oh, I wanted to get my name into the paper." Little did he know he was repeating an old story. The night Alexander the Great was born, the great temple of Diana of Ephesus, one of the seven wonders of the ancient world, was destroyed by fire. The young man who set it afire explained that he did it to immortalize his name.

On the other hand, one of the lasting names in American history knew nothing of her fame, which she won through no conscious action of her own. Her name was Virginia Dare, first white child born on American soil. She lived but nine days—probably the youngest and most short-lived celebrity in all history.

Another way to be famous is just to keep on living along. If you live to be much over 100, your name will be in every paper in the land.

COURTSHIP STRATEGY

A father who has married off three daughters in six weeks says it's very simple when you go about it sensibly. Here is his formula:

"Just leave your refrigerator full of good food and go on upstairs. If you feel obliged to give advice, you can tell the company there are just two rules to follow. They must not violate the Ten Commandments and they must not burn the house down. After that you go to your room, lock the door and sleep on your good ear."

Well, boys and girls, doesn't it sound grand?

If we can't take care of ships like the Normandie, we don't deserve them.

SULFANILAMIDE

The physician of today has much to be thankful for as he thinks of the work of Banting and Best, the discoverers of insulin to control diabetes, and Minot and Murphy, the discoverers of the liver treatment for pernicious anemia. These two dread diseases were formerly always fatal.

Since the discovery of sulfanilamide drugs and their successful fight against the pneumonia organisms, the physician knows in any hundred pneumonia cases, light and severe, that with the use of sulfanilamide all but three or four will recover. Many branches of medicine are now finding help from the sulfanilamide drugs. Dr. Everett L. Goar, Houston, Texas, at the last session of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology, Chicago, said:

"Ophthalmologists have reason to be gratified for the discovery of these drugs for they have proved a specific (cure) in two of the most dreaded and difficult infections we have to deal with. Sulfanilamide has achieved results in glaucoma (infection of fluid in eyeball causing bulging of eyeball) that would take years with any other form of treatment. Eyes infected with the organism of gonorrhea which formerly would have been lost in spite of every treatment known may now be saved with this drug."

As to the success of the treatment of ear, nose and throat conditions, Dr. Charles T. Porter, Boston, stated that sulfadiazine, a form of sulfanilamide, "was found most useful as it offers hope in conditions difficult to control, some that were formerly invariably fatal." With the use of the sulfadiazine to control infection and heparin, the recently discovered drug that slows down the clotting of blood, formation of clots in the cavernous sinus which is just behind the eyes on the floor of the skull is prevented. Even meningitis that sometimes complicates ear, nose and throat infections has now been brought under some degree of control. The complication of meningitis in ordinary ear, nose and throat ailments has been a real source of worry to physicians.

Thus as the physician thinks of these dreaded and so often fatal cases and realizes that he has a weapon—sulfanilamide—with which to fight these diseases, he has, as stated above much reason to be gratified.

WASHINGTON'S NO. 1 NUISANCE

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The Capital in wartime:

The Red Cross says that since Pearl Harbor, more than 55,000 persons have donated to the nation's blood bank.

The following little item isn't intended to detract one bit from any one of those. They've done their bit and more. But among them is a little group that deserves special mention in my book. Here's why:

I have never known a member of Congress to shy away from "helpful" publicity—that is, not until now. But up in the Capitol, the number of congressmen who have volunteered blood has reached such a level that Dr. G. W. Calver, congressional physician has had to organize a Capitol branch of the blood bank. And one specific stipulation is that there is to be NO publicity about it.

Typical of the secrecy surrounding these donations is the case of Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, 64 years old. The senator is no shrinking violet when it comes to getting his name on Page 1. But it was only by chance that it leaked out that he had been one of the first to get himself okayed. Today, if you ask him about his trip to the blood bank hospital, he'll tell you, "I don't know what you are talking about and besides don't you make out that contributing to the blood bank is a publicity stunt, because it isn't."

The Interstate Commerce Commission has had its share of complaints, but in Washington at least, it always has been known as one of the leaders in governmental economy. When the order went out that all agencies should conserve paper, I.C.C. was the first to single-space and use both sides of the sheet.

The commission's latest economy touch is a beaut. Each day, a mailing clerk makes the rounds and picks up the orders for delivery to western clients. In each section, these number from 20 to 150 sheets and it has been customary to hand them to the clerk, rolled up, and held with a rubber band. Now as the mailing clerk receives them, the I.C.C. clerk does a Houdini, slips off the rubber band and drops it back into the box for use again.

Maury Maverick, the stormy petrel of Texas politics, one-time congressman and former mayor of San Antonio, has had a lot of offices in Washington and out, but I doubt if any of them can touch that 17-by-10 room he occupies in Temporary building E (it was there in World War I), where his title is director of (state and municipal) government supplies. If you know him well, he is sure to show you his "private kitchen." It consists of three drawers in the filing cabinet. One contains a set of pinkish dishes; another, an electric hot plate; and the third, some canned goods and staples.

Mrs. Maverick, he'll explain proudly, bustles in at lunch time; cooks up a meal for him and any business guests he may have; and washes the dishes down the hall in a cubby-hole sink.

Income Tax

Your Federal Income Tax
No. 46
ADDITION TO THE TAX FOR DELAY IN FILING RETURNS

In the event of failure to make and file an income tax return as required by law within the prescribed time, a certain percent of the amount of the tax is required to be added to the tax unless failure to file the return within the prescribed time is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to be due to reasonable cause and not willful neglect.

The amount to be added to the tax is 5 percent if the failure is for not more than 30 days, with an additional 5 percent for each additional 30 days or fraction thereof during which failure to file a return continues, not to exceed 25 percent in the aggregate. A taxpayer who files a tardy return and wishes to avoid the addition to the tax for delinquency must make an affirmative showing of all facts, alleged as a reasonable cause for failure to file the return on time, in the form of an affidavit which should be attached to the return. Alleged ignorance of the law does not constitute reasonable cause for delinquency.

Tax payers should make every effort to file their returns within the time prescribed by law and thus avoid the possibility of the additions to the tax for delinquency in filing returns.

News From West Coast Tells 250 Industrial Plants Took

Monday as Holiday

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 26 — Even as President Roosevelt was calling for "uninterrupted production," the news dispatches were reporting from the Pacific coast that 250 west coast industrial plants were closed Monday of this week because Washington's birthday fell on a Sunday.

Donald Nelson, production chief, had appealed to American workers and management to continue to work on Monday yet the unions asked as their price of compliance not just the ordinary overtime but "double time" and this, the employers said, was too expensive under the terms of their fixed fees and selling prices.

Some of the big plants on the west coast operated on Monday as usual and in a few of them the workers donated their overtime pay to navy relief. But the union leaders in the smaller plants working on defense tasks refused to allow the men to work unless double time were paid.

This isn't the first time requests from the government have been ignored by labor unions. President Roosevelt three times last October begged the C. I. O. to call off the coal strike but to no avail until he granted the Lewis demand for an arbitrator of his liking. If an employer ventured to ignore a government request in a labor matter either his plant would be commandeered or he would be pilloried in unmistakable language.

The President is apparently timid about treading on the toes of the union leaders. In his radio speech of Monday night, he hesitated to call a spade a spade and tell the unions what he may have meant by the plea to give up demands for "special advantages." This phrase could be construed to mean the so-called union shop or closed shop and the various forms of compulsory unionism. But never in his address did Mr. Roosevelt specifically refer to union demands on these points.

While strikes are not numerous, the list of disputes pouring in on the government agencies for conciliation is at a new high record. More cases have been brought to the new war labor board in the last six weeks than in the first six months of the old defense mediation board.

The cases reveal quite a lot of demands for union shops, closed shops, and for compulsory unionism through maintenance of membership contracts. Ever since the Roosevelt administration encouraged the compulsory union idea when it commandeered the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company's plant, at Kearney, N. J., the unions have been quick to push ahead for these "special advantages."

Until the war labor board definitely rules out these demands for "special advantages" and puts into decision form what the President may have urged by implication in his Monday night radio speech, the number of disputes about these different types of compulsory unionism will tend to increase instead of diminish. Quite often such demands, of course, are used as trading points in negotiating for higher wages. While the administration is getting ready to put even higher taxes on business and individuals, it is not moving toward a repression of extra demands for higher wages. For the government to keep a ceiling on prices while doing nothing to keep a ceiling on costs, is going to lead to failure for many businesses, particularly the small ones.

As for efficiency in production, the same night that Mr. Roosevelt was broadcasting, an announcement came from John Green, national president of the Shipbuilding Workers' Union of the C. I. O. that efficiency was 30 to 50 per cent short of what it should be in the ship yards—all because, Mr. Green said, labor wasn't managing the job. Unquestionably there are slow-downs due to union-management friction but on this phase of the battle of production, the President apparently hesitates to act and Congress remains passive. It is still lawful to strike, to slow down production and even to refuse to work on holidays unless paid double time. Incidentally, no double time is paid American soldiers, sailors or airmen for fighting on Sundays or holidays. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

Stamps In The News

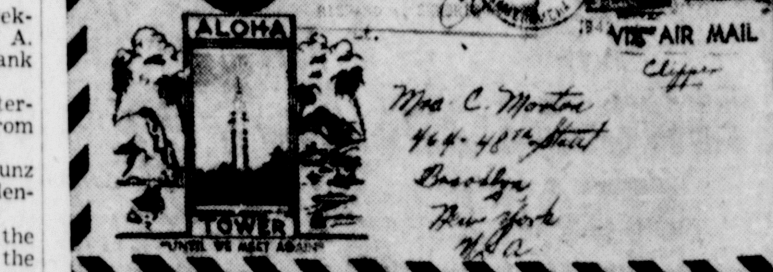

World Wide Features

Strange things happen to stamps and to covers these war days. For instance, one New York family in spite of censorship gets mail from its soldier member in Honolulu within five days of mailing regularly now rather than in 8 or 9 days in the pre-war schedule.

Censor marks from Hawaii vary to add further interest to these envelopes too. The block form shown here including the censor's name and the date has been arriving most frequently. But late last week a new circular red hand-stamp showed on covers from Honolulu. The inscription on the newer stamp reads "Passed by Army Censor."

Among interesting cover developments is the use of a war economy label used now on British mail. The inscription on the label reads: "War Economy Label Re-Use of Envelopes. To fasten fold this label along the dotted line. Affix to the envelope so as to seal it and cover the old address (or address panel) and open by slitting along this edge. On His Majesty's Service."

Written in ink above "On His Majesty's Service" is "Passed by Censor." And stamped in red ink that inscription. Also on this label is the address of the recipient, special war office hand stamp in red and another war office hand stamp in purple. Both of these Argentina is having a 5-cent stamp in commemoration of the birth of Dr. Jose Manuel Estrada, writer and orator. He was born July 13, 1842.

Three new Palestine values like the 1927-32 showing the Sea of Galilee have arrived. Values are 250-m. dark brown, 500-m. deep red and 1-piastre slate.

There is a new Canadian Air-graph form to be used from Canada for members of the armed forces in the British Empire. The original letter is photographed and kept until the corresponding film arrives overseas.

The Philatelic Journal of Great Britain recommends the New Zealand 9-d value issued a few months ago as one of the most interesting items of the present. This is the stamp replaced by similar multiple watermarked issue.

A meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Margaret Kenyon Monday to make tentative arrangements for the forming of an organization here to be known as the American Women's Auxiliary Services. This society was originally formed in America in 1940 by Alice S. Lean and was patterned after the society of the same type in England. The meeting Monday was addressed by Mrs. Frazier but no definite action was taken. There will be another meeting and it is believed that a local branch will be formed.

Pertinent Facts On Conscription

While Third Registration was an outstanding success, due to the efforts of the board members, volunteer registrars, and employees, some of the boards had considerable handicaps to overcome as reported to Brigadier General Ames T. Brown, New York state director of Selective Service.

The Local Board of Sayville, Long Island, maintained a registration place at Ocean Beach, an island across Great South Bay. A school principal registered 11 men who otherwise would have been late with their registration because of a combination of ice and open water in the bay.

State headquarters has awarded first prize for difficult situations to Local Board No. 364 at Corinth, N. Y. This board reported its clerk had elected to register the inmates of Mount McGregor Sanatorium and she set out on Monday, February 16, to accomplish the registration.

"In the midst of a blinding snowstorm, she left the office at 2 p. m. Negotiating the roads at 15 m.p.h. and after being lost any number of times, she finally arrived at the steep ascent of Mt. McGregor.

This is a 45-degree spiral curve straight to the summit. The first turn was successfully maneuvered but on the second she came a cropper and looped the loop all the way to the bottom, ending up ingloriously in a snowbank. Nothing daunted, all papers were taken out and the ascent resumed on foot.

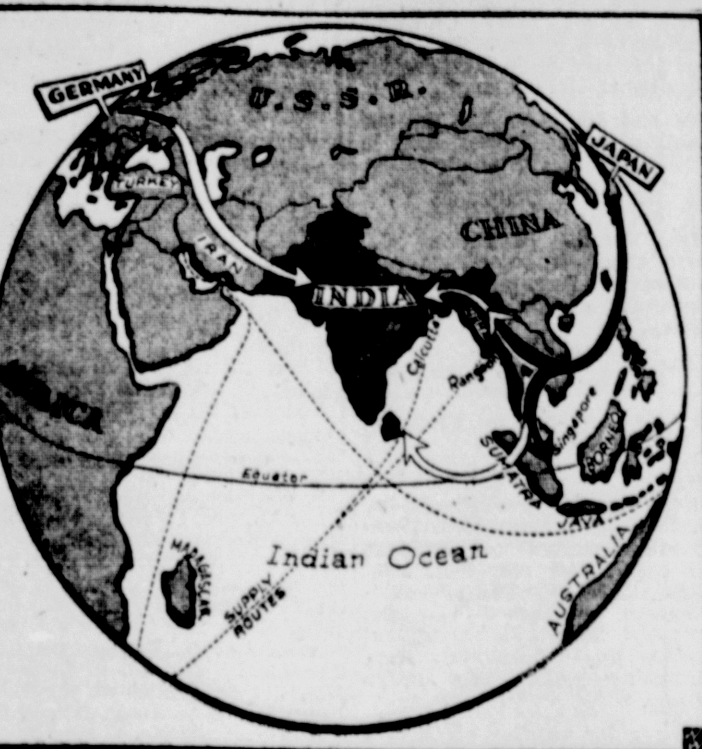

"It was pitch-black by that time, and the wind and sleet had closed all roads to traffic. Not a light shone anywhere. The director of the institution had been notified that a registrar would be there early in the afternoon, and he telephoned the office twice to inquire if plans had been changed. You can imagine the anxiety in the office when we realized it was 4:30 and our clerk had still not arrived there. The director finally concluded the ascent was being made on foot, and he directed the institution's station-wagon to go down on a search. This vehicle was under repair and a truck was sent down. It found our special registrar half way up the mountain and after going down to where it could turn around, came back and picked her up. Soaking wet and disheveled, but ever so thankful, she climbed in and completed the journey. Thirty-five were registered.

"On the downtrip, the employees retrieved the car and turned it around for her; she then made the return trip (25 miles each way) over a solid sheet of ice, arriving at the office at five minutes before 9, thoroughly exhausted but triumphant.

General Brown stated the services of the volunteer registrars were very efficient and were an outstanding feature of the successful registration. Many of them were veterans of World War I. He has conveyed to them the thanks and gratitude of the system.

Axis Spring Strategy?

Wide World Features

ARMCHAIR generals and military experts are virtually unanimous in calling the double pincer movement outlined above as the high strategy of the Axis spring campaign. It is a long distance squeeze of India, predicted on Hitler's long dreamed of Drang Nach Osten through Turkey and Iran, while Japan works its way west through Burma and jumps across the Indian Ocean from Sumatra. The black arrow cross Axis-held territory, the white arrows indicate the moves to come.

U. S. Scores Two Big Triumphs

to divert shipping from the Philippines to support her multi-pointed attack against the Dutch East Indies, thus leaving Gen. Hottel's armies without adequate military supplies to execute the long-awaited major offensive against Gen. MacArthur's men.

For the first time in weeks, the communists also mentioned sporadic fighting on Mindanao Island, 600 miles south of Bataan.

The new blows to Japan's sea powers capped an official disclosure in Washington that since December 10 a total of 74 Japanese ships had been sunk, seven more probably sunk and 33 damaged.

"They can't keep their losses over a year with their building program," a naval spokesman said, adding that unless Japan could succeed in making this a "quick and fast" war, she could not hope to win.

Despite fierce counter-blows by allied planes, warships and submarines, official dispatches indicated that Japan was pressing her southward march of conquest with all-out fury and that "zero hour" was near in the battle for Java.

Dutch headquarters acknowledged that the invaders, striking down through lower Sumatra, had reached the narrow Sunda Strait directly across from Java.

An N.E.I. communique said Dutch naval forces bombed Japanese storage yards near Oosthaven, which is the Dutch name for the Port of Telok Betong, on a bay at Sumatra's southern tip. Sunda Strait at that point is 50 miles wide.

Japanese warplanes roared over Java itself in the seventh successive day of intensive attacks, bombing the great Soerabaya naval base and airdromes in western Java. The toll at Soerabaya was listed as seven killed, 19 seriously wounded.

The Dutch communique also reported that fighting raged "with unabated fierceness" on the island of Celebes and acknowledged Japanese capture of Sinking in western Borneo and the tin-producing island of Bangka, off the east coast of lower Sumatra.

In the battle of Burma, a Reuters (British news agency) dispatch said fresh Chinese troops were streaming southward into the beleaguered British colony.

Agents Seize Two More Enemy Aliens

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—A Japanese, with what the Federal Bureau of Investigation describes as extensive photographic equipment, and another German have fallen prey to Eastern New York raiders operating under the President's proclamation against retention of contraband by enemy aliens.

The pair, whom the F. B. I. reported taken last night in raids in Lake George, Glens Falls, Chestertown and Patterson, brings the total seized since Saturday to 14. Ralph L. Emmons, U. S. attorney for the Northern New York District, said "some" had been released after hearings.

ready to combat any Japanese thrust northward toward Mandalay, 375 miles above Rangoon.

London military quarters said advancing Chinese had already clashed with the Japanese in "patrol actions" in the northern Shan states of Burma.

While British Imperial troops fought with their backs to the wall in a desperate attempt to save Rangoon, demolition squads started destroying vital installations. Black smoke rolled over the Burmese capital, and only charred ruins marked the site of a big oil refinery.

The German radio, quoting Tokyo dispatches, said that Rangoon was in flames and that Japanese troops were "before the gates" of the capital.

An R.A.F. communique said 21 Japanese planes were shot down this morning in air battles over the Rangoon area.

The Netherlands East Indies, which also had used the scorched earth policy rigorously to minimize Japanese victories in outlying islands, were officially advised that beleaguered Java had a reasonable fighting chance.

"The time for destruction and withdrawal has now ended," Lieutenant Governor-General Hubertus J. Van Mook said in a Batavia broadcast. "The time for holding out and attacking has come."

Van Mook told Java's 40,000,000 people that the allied troops—including United States aerial squadrons—which are in Java "will remain and will be maintained through a regular stream of reinforcements."

Japanese forces invading Burma apparently were still being held at the Sittang river, with the closest some 60 miles from Rangoon, but the fighting of British and Indian troops appeared at best to be merely a delaying action and there was the possibility of a direct Japanese thrust across the Gulf of Martaban from the Moulmein area.

Japanese conquest of the southern zone would finally end the value of the Burma road as a war supply route to China—although this has already been discounted by trans-India transport arrangements—and open the war for a push north and west against the Shan states and India.

Both Ships 'Suffered'

London, Feb. 26 (AP)—Both the Scharthorst and Gneisenau, Germany's escaped 26,000-ton battleships, have suffered "severe damage" according to reliable reports, an official British spokesman announced today. He also announced: "I can reveal that his majesty's submarine Trident successfully attacked a cruiser of the Prinz Eugen class off the coast of Norway February 23 and obtained a hit." The 10,000-ton Prinz Eugen herself accompanied the twin battleships in their escape through the English Channel from Brest.

Wells Pleads Innocent

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Huestis Wells, former president of the Tampa-New Orleans-Tampico Airlines, Inc., today pleaded innocent to an indictment charging him with violation of the 1934 neutrality embargo act. Appearing before Federal Judge Alfred C. Cox, he was granted 60 days in which to file a demurrer to the indictment and his bail of $5,000 was granted. Wells, the government charged, conspired to sell and ship four bomber-type planes to Bolivia, then involved in the Gran Chaco dispute with Paraguay.

Statement Might Come

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Sumner Wells, acting secretary of state indicated today that a statement clarifying relations between the United States and Vichy governments might be issued tomorrow. Relations with Vichy became strained some weeks ago by reports that Axis forces in Libya were receiving aid through French Tunisia.

Owners of Dogs Face Action if Pets Unlicensed

Albany, Feb. 26—A publicity man for the State Department of Agriculture and Markets finished a newspaper "handout" exhorting dog owners to hurry up and license their pets. At his home outside of Albany that night, the press agent answered the telephone. It was the justice of the peace on the wire. The conversation: J.P.—"The town clerk submitted to me today a list of 85 dog owners who have failed to license their dogs. Your name is on the list." P.A.—"I forgot about it. I'll get the license in a couple of days, so don't issue a summons for me even though my name is on the list of delinquents." J.P.—"All right, and to tell you the truth, my name is on it too." As required by law, town and city clerks in New York state are submitting lists of delinquent owners to justices of the peace and city clerks. Duplicate lists go to the dog licensing section of the Department of Agriculture and Markets which in turn supplies summonses and report blanks for immediate action against owners whose dogs are still without their 1942 tags. A motion picture theatre circuit in Salvador is run as a subsidiary to the government.

Publication of a German "war picture" in a Smyrna newspaper brought laughter in Ankara, Turkey. The photo showed Nazi soldiers holding a flag bearing the portraits of Lenin and Stalin. The caption said the flag had been won "after fierce fighting." Many Turks understand Russian, and they knew the inscription on the flag read: "Prize in excellence. Awarded to the best primary school of the Schmorski region."

Plastic Airplanes
Might Be Made
From Sugar CaneIf Idea Proves Practicable,
Louisiana Could Produce Enough Material to Outdo All PlantsBy HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Wide World Science Editor)

New Orleans, Feb. 26.—If plastic airplanes are produced, they are likely to be made mostly of sugar cane.

For two reasons: First, sugar cane plastic is nearly as strong as iron. Second, sugar cane is the most plentiful and cheapest of all present plastic sources.

This cane stuff, newest of commercial plastics, is made from bagasse, which is sugar cane after heavy rollers have pressed out the sweet juice. Bagasse is a straw colored fiber.

It is the only raw material of agriculture which costs nothing to gather or to produce. Sugar mills have to get rid of it. For decades they hauled it away. Later they used it as fuel. Recently it has been made into cellophane.

Dr. Lynch is still enough left, in Louisiana's sugar bowl alone, to make more plastics than now are produced by all the American processes combined. Bagasse runs 6 to 7 tons to the acre, against two tons for rice straw, the next largest fiber crop.

The blond bagasse turns into an almost coal black plastic, smooth, shiny, forming dishes that can be bounced on the floor without breaking. It won't burn, but at 700 to 800 degrees Fahrenheit will glow a dull red.

Used for Electrical Fittings

The bagasse plastic now is used for war mainly in preformed electrical fittings. Studies are under way for making sugar cane gun stocks. Like standard plastics, the articles it can make run into thousands.

But at present priorities limit it mostly to war, for there are shortages of some of the chemicals used in plastics.

The original credit for the sugar cane product goes to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, whose bi-products laboratory started the study of bagasse under Dr. D. F. Lynch at Iowa State University, Ames, Ia.

Dr. Lynch now is director of the new U. S. southern regional research laboratory. One of his former Ames assistants, T. R. McElhinney joined the staff of Valentine Sugars, Lockport, La., where with the company staff the work was carried to the industrial stage, and the first bagasse plastic mill erected.

Bagasse after chemical treatment is reduced to a powder resembling coarse sugar. To make plastic articles, the powder is poured into metal molds. The molds are heated to several hundred degrees, 3,000 pounds of pressure per square inch is turned on, and the cane flour turns momentarily into a liquid.

In less than one minute the liquid changes into an iron-hard, finished plastic article.

Technically, bagasse has an important advantage over many other plastics which use wood flour as part of their composition. Bagasse required no wood or other flour.

Possibilities of the cane plastic include auto bodies and boats up to 20 feet in length. There is a prospect of a cane plastic cheap enough to make doors and window casements that will not need painting. The new plastic takes countersunk metal plating in ornamental designs.

Other sugar companies are reported to have laboratory work on bagasse plastics. The prospects are so attractive that Maj. Meigs O. Frost, New Orleans writer, said it is possible cane sugar may become a by-product of a sugar cane plastics industry.

Plan Clean-up of Auto
Graveyards in State

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 26.—A clean-up of "auto graveyards" to salvage scrap metal is next on the docket of war jobs to be done in New York state.

Assistance has been asked of state and county USDA war boards in compiling a complete list of these places to stimulate a flow of scrap to the nation's steel mills.

Ralph Y. DeWolfe, chairman of the USDA war board in this state, says the War Projects Administration is to conduct the survey in cities of 15,000 or more population. County war boards, largely through organizations of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, will do the same for the rural areas of the state.

It is stated that scrap metal from twenty to thirty thousand auto graveyards in the country should yield from three to four million tons of scrap iron and steel needed this year.

The scrap-metal shortage constitutes a vital problem, according to Lessing J. Rosenwald, chief of the bureau of industrial conservation of the war production board. During recent months he says, furnaces with an annual capacity of several million tons have had to shut down because of the lack of iron and steel scrap.

Surveys are to be completed by March 9.

Youth Slugged at Girl's Inquest

Clarence McDonald (center), hair streaming across his face, rubs his jaw after being struck a heavy blow by John Broz (not shown), uncle of Dorothy Broz, who was fatally shot in a Chicago theatre. The slugging took place at an inquest into the slaying. Coroner A. L. Brodie said that Clarence confessed the slaying.

Photos at bottom show another view of McDonald and his victim, Dorothy Broz, 16. The coroner's office said Young McDonald admitted shooting Miss Broz, his companion, as they sat in the balcony of the theatre.

Plan Is Advanced to Clear
Roads Quickly During RaidState Would Be Sliced
Into Zones So That
Equipment Could Be Exchanged

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—Legislators received today a plan for quick clearance of New York highways in event of enemy bombings.

Introduced by two Republicans, Assemblyman Wheeler Milne of Madison county and Senator Roy M. Page of Broome county, for the influential joint committee on interstate cooperation, the bill would divide the state into zones for emergency exchange of highway maintenance equipment and crews.

The community receiving aid would bear all labor and traveling expenses, although the assisting community could assume the expense if it desired.

Zone directors would coordinate work of local officials in assigning needed facilities to bombed areas, keeping a complete inventory of available men and machines in all sections.

Democratic Assemblyman Charles J. Dalzell, Queens, meanwhile, introduced a measure to permit air raid wardens free use in emergencies of telephone and telegraph facilities.

Poultry Meeting Slated

Professor L. M. Hurd, poultry specialist from Cornell University, will be the principal speaker at a countywide poultry meeting this evening at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be held in the lecture room of the Farm Bureau office, 74 John street, Kingston. A large part of the time will be devoted to a "question and answer" period in which the audience and those interested are invited.

Kerhonksonite Bankrupt

New York, Feb. 25 (Special)—Mrs. Rose Weinstein of Kerhonkson filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in United States District Court here today, listing debts of $1,931, all in unsecured claims, and assets of $15. Among the creditors are Van Etten Bros., Kingston, owed $205; M. E. Green, Kingston, $185, and Hall Bros., Wallingford, Conn., $550.

With good crops and high prices for them in 1941, many farmers in Mexico are out of debt and have small cash balances for the first time in years.

Florida Botanist
Experiments With
New Type CoconutThis Form, Which Is Called
'Makapuno,' Promises
Delicious Ice Cream,
Sponsors Say

Miami, Fla., Feb. 26 (Wide World)—About 50 years hence, if you're lucky, you may eat a dish of Makapuno ice cream, made from a freakish coconut. For it, you may go ahead now and thank 73-year-old Dr. David Fairchild, eminent Florida botanist.

A Makapuno coconut looks like a normal one and grows on trees that also produce ordinary coconuts. But the Makapuno, as Dr. Fairchild describes it half seriously, is a "coconut without the maternal instinct."

"It is a freak in which the milk seemingly combines with the meat of the nut to form a delicious food of the consistency of thick pudding," he explained. "The fate that made them so delicious deprived them of the possibility of forming a new tree. They can never sprout."

Ice cream made from them is positively the most delicious that can be found.

The palms that produce normal coconuts and Makapunos, often in the same cluster, are found only in one small area of the Philippines, now overrun by invading Japanese. Dr. Fairchild brought several dozen nuts to Miami after his 1940 Fairchild Tropical Garden Expedition. They were planted on the estate of Dr. Hugh Matheson, and the normal ones sprouted.

They will bear in about 15 years, but the first crop of coconuts will be too valuable to eat. It will be planted, and eventually south Florida will boast a grove which will offer Makapunos for limited commercial use.

Explaining his description of the Makapuno is being "without the maternal instinct," the scientist said that the coconut, like a mammalian mother, actually nurses its young.

When the nut sprouts and the tuft of green forces through the fibrous outer husk, a pulpy white growth starts to form inside the nut itself.

"That white growth is aptly named the 'nurse,'" said the white-haired veteran of many expeditions. "At first the plant has no roots but grows strong and green—fed by the 'nurse' which eventually fills the entire inside hollow space of the coconut."

"After it has fed all the milk to the young plant, it goes on to absorb the meat of the nut, which it feeds to the lusty treelet, just as a mother changes the diet of her young. By the time the meat is consumed, the plant has developed roots and is ready to care for itself. Then the 'nurse' dies and the old coconut decays."

Colonial Rebekah Lodge
Has Anniversary Session

The regular meeting of Colonial Rebekah Lodge was held Monday evening with the Noble Grand Bertha Lawrence presiding. The 37th anniversary, and obligation night and Washington's Birthday was celebrated by a drill under the direction of Clara Van Buren and Edna Cole was given by the following ladies: Helen Otto Margaret Myers, Bertha Lawrence, Mildred Lincoln, Florence Wells, Mary Schaefer, Neale Krom, Martha Rand, Catherine Schleede, Hazel Auchmoodie, Elsie Shipman, Nettie Lasher, Grace Berryman, Mable Bode, and Theora Ryar.

A birthday cake was cut and a chicken supper was served by Nettie Lasher and committee, Myrtle Flowers, Olive Taylor, Grace Armstrong, Emma Twiner, Ella LeWare, Lodeski Nichols and Josephine Patridge.

The district deputy president and staff of Marlborough were present. Members were also present from Highland, Rosendale and Atharhacton Lodge.

Grand jury action was recommended by a coroner's jury which reached a murder verdict at an inquest thrown into momentary uproar when an uncle of the slain girl rushed past the youth's guards and struck him in the face.

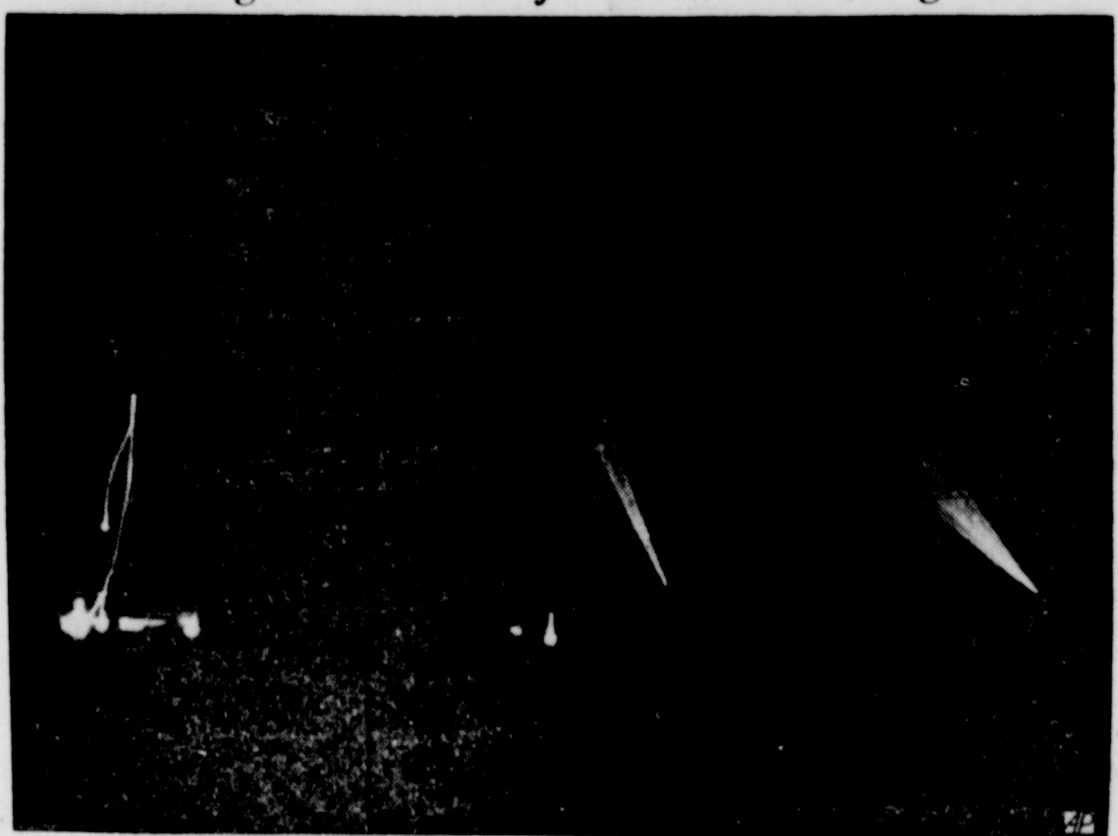

Chicago, Feb. 26 (AP)—Prosecutors asked the grand jury today to return a murder indictment against 17-year-old Clarence McDonald who, they said, confessed his fatal shooting of a girl friend in a movie theatre balcony had been planned three days earlier.

"I was terribly jealous of her and afraid she'd never marry me," he told Prosecutor Wilbert Crowley and police seeking a motive for the killing of Dorothy Broz, 17, high school "All-American Girl" and honor student, Tuesday afternoon.

"So I finally decided that if I couldn't have her I didn't want anyone else to have her," he declared.

Grand jury action was recommended by a coroner's jury which reached a murder verdict at an inquest thrown into momentary uproar when an uncle of the slain girl rushed past the youth's guards and struck him in the face.

Searchlights Seek 'Object' Over Los Angeles

Something which could not be identified more specifically than as an "object"—some said an enemy blimp, others said an airplane—caused a blackout to be enforced around Los Angeles, while searchlights and anti-aircraft batteries went into action. No bombs were dropped; no aircraft were shot down. This picture, made during the height of the mysterious incident, shows searchlight beams, and at the left, course of tracer bullets.

Teachers Study Orders
Local Rationing Officials Also Consider Sugar Problem as Outlined in Book

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—New York school teachers and local rationing officials are studying a thick handbook of minute instructions—the plan for parceling out the state's share of sugar.

District school superintendents and rationing board members met yesterday to learn details of the program under which statewide rationing of all kinds of sugar will go into effect by the end of March—probably March 28 after a one-week halt on all sugar sales.

Individual consumers will register for ration coupon books March 17-20 at all public schools in the state. Registration of dealers has tentatively been set for March 9 and 10 at public high schools.

Eugene T. Brady of the Federal Rationing Office in Washington told the meeting rationing is necessary now "because there is actually more sugar in the hands of consumers than on the shelves of stores." Eventual rationing was inevitable, he added, as soon as war shut off the nation's supplies.

Teachers will register consumers, Brady said, but will not be responsible for discovering and reporting violations. Books will be issued to each member of a family on application of one member, but there will be no "family" books.

The present program is temporary, Brady asserted, and a permanent system is expected to be operating before the 28 weekly coupons of the original books are gone. No maximum has yet been set on the amount of sugar that may be purchased under each coupon, he added.

Family units consist of parents or guardians, unmarried dependents under 18, unmarried children, unmarried wards or parents or guardians. Not included in the family, and requiring separate application, are: married children, servants or employees, members of the family not living at home, and relatives other than children.

Most frequently mentioned are Joan Fontaine, for "Suspicion," and Barbara Stanwyck for "Ball of Fire." A strong contender, however, is Fontaine's sister, Olivia De Havilland, whose performance in "Hold Back the Dawn" was very meritorious. On the basis of personal popularity, which will be the determining factor with many of the 10,000-odd voters, it'll be either Stanwyck or De Havilland, Greer Garson, named for "Blossoms in the Dust," isn't given much of a chance.

Other actors nominated are Cary Grant, "Penny Serenade"; Walter Huston, "All That Money Can Buy"; Robert Montgomery, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," and Orson Wells, "Citizen Kane."

Montgomery and Wells appear to be Cooper's toughest competition. Wells is certain to win a couple of prizes for "Kane." He and his picture were nominated for a high of nine possible awards—best picture, performance, direction, screenplay, art direction, sound recording, photography, musical scoring and film editing.

The best picture prize is a toss-up, too. There is the widest division of opinion ever. "How Green Was My Valley" and "Sergeant York" lead the field, with "Kane" and "Foxes" right behind. Other pictures nominated are "Blossoms in the Dust," "Hold Back the Dawn," "The Maltese Falcon," "One Foot in Heaven" and "Suspicion."

Of course—even an amateur prognosticator likes a loophole—last minute voting may nose Cooper out of first place. And, despite her previous good record, Davis could win again.

Monthly meeting of the Society of Friends was held in the Tillson Friends' Church on Saturday and was well attended. There was a morning session with devotional singing and sermon by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Anson Coutant. At noon dinner was served. At the afternoon meeting reports were read by the clerk. Delegates and committees were appointed. The March meeting will also be held in the Tillson Friends Church.

Another Group Is Doing Damage by Slandering PolicyPersonal Animosities Also Play Role Where Allies
Are Concerned, but Let's
Consider FactsBy DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

Washington's action in rounding up enemy aliens and internment the dangerous element, as further evidenced in Attorney General Biddle's report, is a great battle won for our country, since there is in our midst a host of enemy agents such as played a large part in the downfall of unhappy France and other unwary democracies.

When enemy aliens have been smoked out, however, there still will remain at large another far greater group which daily is doing untold damage—the rumor-mongers and slanderers among our own people. Some of their work is deliberate and vicious, for they are the Quislings who side with the enemy. Some of it is due to adletheadedness which sows up idle war-gossip and Axis propaganda and spews it out in public places, lowering the morale of others and in effect sabotaging our war-effort.

Something goes wrong somewhere on the vast expanse of ocean which covers two-thirds of the earth's surface, and you hear a raucous voice squawk: "Where's the American navy! Did the Japs sink it all!"

Well, where is our navy? Silently and without advertising, it's helping to police the seven seas, domination of which is essential to our victory. As President Roosevelt pointed out Monday night, among other things it is keeping open our four main lines of communication—"the north Atlantic, the south Atlantic, the Indian ocean and the south Pacific, x x x the maintenance of these vital lines is a very tough job."

Hunting Down Submarines
Our navy is hunting down submarines off both our coasts, and keeping these sea-wolves from committing greater depredations than they already have achieved. It's extending protection clear down to our sister republics of South America. But why waste time arguing? Fifth columnists and Quislings will pop up with another insidious question and the rumor-mongers will start to bleat again.

Then we get the folk who constantly are slinging mud at our Allies, thereby creating bad feeling and doing untold damage to morale. These people either have tongues which are loose at both ends, or are impelled by personal animosity. Here's a common query, which is the product of pro-Axis cunning:

"What's the matter with the British; they haven't won a victory since the war started?"

Nothing could be further from the truth than that. Where would the Allied cause be today if the British navy hadn't at the outset of this war had control of the seas, and continued to maintain that domination until finally America could take a hand? I'll tell you where the cause would be.

Fuehrer Hitler would long ago have been sitting on the throne of the English kings in Westminster Abbey, lord of all he surveyed, instead of expending his energies trying to break through the blockade which Britain sturdily has maintained about the continent. As already remarked, control of the sea is one of the fundamentals upon which the Allies will triumph ultimately, and yet unthinking or vicious people pick up the Axis propaganda and broadcast that the British aren't pulling their weight.

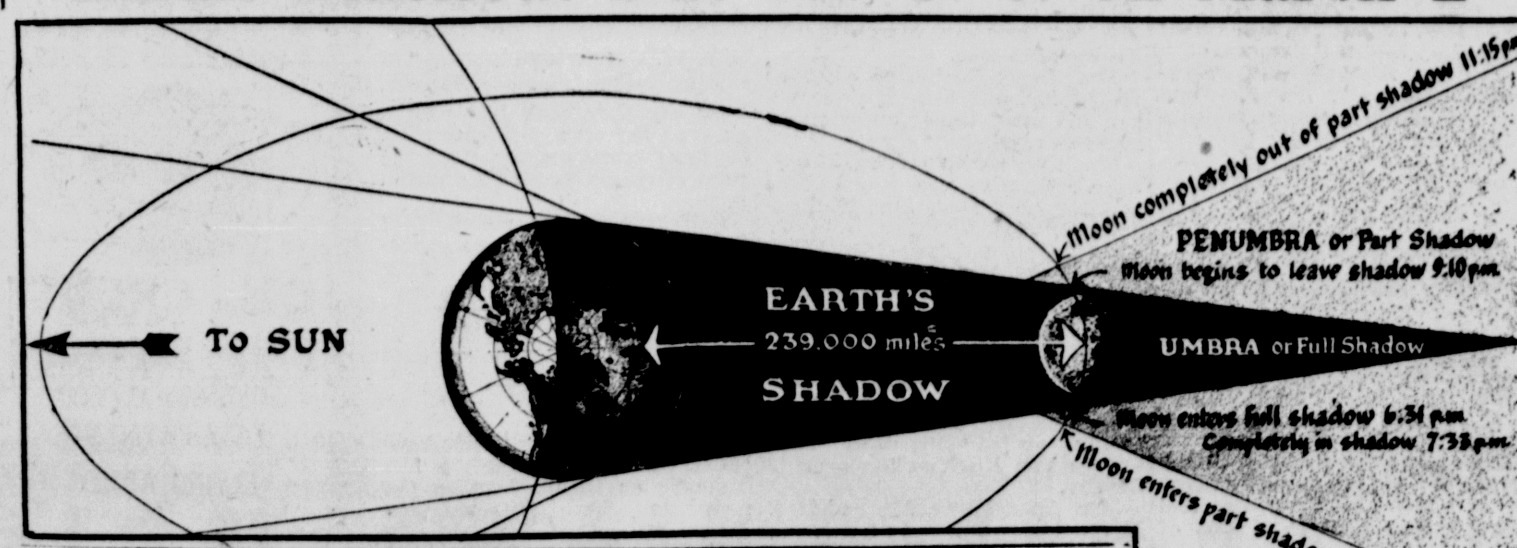

There is still another class of people who unwittingly are serving the Nazi chief. David Low, the brilliant British cartoonist, has summed these folk up in his famous character "Colonel Blimp," who represents the reactionary elements in all walks of life.

Sir Stafford Crisp, new leader of the British House of Commons in the Churchill government, referred to "blimpiness" yesterday in his first speech in the House since he took over this post. He blamed "Colonel Blimp mentality" of reactionary military and governmental administrators for helping Britain lose part of her colonial empire. But blimps aren't confined to England. We have plenty in this country.

Large coal deposits, estimated to yield 6,000,000 to 12,000,000 tons, have just been found in Sweden.

Jewelers Turning To Many Forms In Costume Lines

By AMY PORTER

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Spaghetti around the wrist instead of the fork; snail shells on the bosom instead of the beach—these are samples of how jewelry manufacturers are overcoming the loss of their tin supply.

Seeds, nuts and wood also are being used for novelty jewelry. While for more conservative costume jewelry the manufacturers are turning to precious metals and semi-precious stones and producing real instead of "junk" bracelets and other bangles.

Rallying out of the doldrums which beset them recently when a war production board ruling cut off their supply of tin, jewelers who for more than a year have managed without pearls from Japan and glass stones from Czechoslovakia decided two things:

To use precious metals for their products, yet continue to sell them at the usual low costume jewelry prices.

To develop novelty lines, using seashells and the like instead of tin as raw material.

Milady's silver bracelet will be gold plated, probably, just as her tin one was, for the sake of style and to eliminate the need for polishing. If it sells for $1, it won't be quite as bulky, but the design will be more attractive, jewelers say.

Her lapel piece may have fewer colored stones, but if she can be content with only one or two stones they may be real jade, or rose quartz, of good design and craftsmanship, on which manufacturers say they are concentrating.

For summer gaiety jewelers propose strings of spaghetti dyed to brilliant colors, strings of Nassau snail shells in their natural state, carved plastics and American-made pearls.

Wreck Ahoy! Is Whale
When an alarm was given that a large capsized vessel was drifting ashore outside the fishing village of Paternoster near Saldanha, Cape of Good Hope, all the villagers turned out to help. They waved white sheets to attract attention because the heavy sea prevented them from going to the rescue in small boats. The drifting object proved to be a 50-foot whale with sea-gulls perched on its back. A canning factory obtained four tons of oil from the carcass.

Prisoners in jails in England are to learn about the progress of the war from films and famous lecturers.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

The United States has pledged to Great Britain to furnish one-fourth of the food supply of her people, which is enough to feed 10,000,000 persons.

Do Vimms contain B Complex vitamins? Yes. Vimms have all 3 essential vitamins of the B Complex (B₁, B₂ and P-P). And they also have Vitamins A, D and C.

Why three minerals? Iron, Calcium, and Phosphorus round out the team. Vitamin D, for instance, can do little for you without enough Calcium and Phosphorus.

Can Vimms give me all my vitamins? Yes. Vimms are a balanced vitamin-mineral food supplement. Of course, you also need other food elements as well.

Aren't vitamins expensive? Not when you get them in Vimms! They cost only a few cents a day, the lowest cost ever for any product of comparable type and potency.

Do I need extra vitamins? Government experts estimate 3 out of 4 Americans are not getting enough vitamins and minerals. If you are irritable, tired, "blue," if you are an easy victim of colds, you may be low on vitamins and minerals.

How often should Vimms be taken? Daily—regularly—like other foods. Vitamins are not stored in the body to any great extent.

Why six vitamins? Because there are six vitamins that authorities consider essential in the daily diet. Also because people who are deficient in one vitamin are likely to be low in others.

What are vitamins? Vitamins are essential foods, just as are minerals, proteins, fats and carbohydrates.

Why are vitamins so important? Everyone needs a full supply of vitamins to feel fit. They help the body use other foods properly—help build resistance to colds and infections. They are needed for normal growth in children.

Where do I get vitamins? From foods—especially the protective foods, milk, eggs, fruit, vegetables, meat, and whole-grain cereals. To make sure of getting enough vitamins, many people fortify their diets with a well-balanced vitamin-mineral supplement, like the new Vimms.

What are Vimms? They are little tablets. Easy to swallow and pleasant to eat. No yeast or fishy taste. Vimms contain 6 vitamins and 3 minerals. Vimms give you the right amounts of all the vitamins you may need to fortify your diet.

Samaritans Safer

4.—To Tourniquet or Not

By L. M. Thompson, M.D., Assistant Director First Aid, Water Safety and Accident Prevention Service of The American National Red Cross

In no accident emergency is there greater need for prompt and effective action than in the case of serious bleeding. Loss of half of the blood of the body is fatal, and the loss is sometimes rapid.

Impelled by such knowledge the would-be samaritan is inclined to act in accord with the urge to "do something quickly." Yet here, where time is of the essence, it is most vitally important to do the right thing. Assistance must be effective as well as prompt.

In comparison with actual performances of the untrained in cases of hemorrhage, the yarn about Pat, who put a tourniquet around Mike's neck to prevent his bleeding to death from a cut on the chin, is neither so funny nor so far-fetched as it may sound.

Virtually everyone, it seems, is tourniquet conscious. Ask any one of a dozen untrained in first aid: "What would you do to prevent serious bleeding?" and you will invariably get the prompt and assured response: "Use a tourniquet."

Unfortunately, that is not invariably the right answer; and even in cases where it is the right answer, adequate knowledge and training of the kind readily obtainable through Red Cross first aid courses is essential. Instances are numerous in which the victim's condition has been aggravated or his death made certain by well-meaning but bungling use of this device.

Such instances include use of the tourniquet in the wrong place (sometimes even on the wrong side of the wound); application of insufficient pressure, which may augment the bleeding; constant application of pressure for too long a time, which may cause gangrene to set in; and the use of wire, rope, or other material unsuitable for a tourniquet, which may so seriously injure the member that amputation is necessary.

Adequate knowledge of first aid can be had only by means of competent instruction and training but the fact should be mentioned that a tourniquet, unless properly applied, is a dangerous instrument and that it should not be used if bleeding can be readily checked otherwise. In brief, the tourniquet is useful only in cases of bleeding from an injury of one of the limbs, and there are only two places where it can be effectively applied:

1. Around the upper arm about a hand's breadth below the armpit;
2. Around the thigh about the same distance below the groin.

Bargain Hunting in Seeds Is Condemned

Geneva, N. Y., Feb. 26.—"Bargain" seeds are the biggest slackers on the farm today where every effort is being made to produce sufficient food at the very lowest expense, and they never enlist in the fight against weeds, declares Prof. M. T. Munn, head of seed testing laboratory at the State Experiment Station here. "Use great caution in buying seeds this year, especially if you go outside the State to make your purchase or are tempted by extravagant claims made in certain farm paper advertisements," urges this authority.

Catch phrases, such as, "free samples," "free catalog," "low prices," "save money," "big bargains," are simply devices to attract prospective customers, says Professor Munn. Every farmer who sends away for seeds should do so cautiously and only with a definite understanding that the seed must meet all tests before it will be paid for, is his advice.

"True it is the Federal Seed Act is of great help in controlling untruthful statements," continues this official, "yet it does not prevent the sale of much undesirable seed if one orders it. The seed laboratory will gladly test free of charge any interstate shipments of 'bargain' seeds."

"It is impossible to save money by buying low-priced, uncleaned, untested, or unlabeled seeds because if one takes the trouble to investigate and make actual tests, it will nearly always be found that there is a real reason why the price is low. Surely this is not a year in which to go bargain hunting or to be careless about every pound of seed used regardless of where it comes from. The seed testing laboratory will gladly assist seed buyers who have reason to suspect any statement made about a prospective purchase."

Regency

The difficulty of getting imported carpet wools is worrying carpet manufacturers, but this season, at least, a wide variety in floor coverings will be available. This striking rug lends a true air of distinction to the Regency room setting.

venient method of stopping the flow of blood from an external wound, regardless of its location, is by means of hand pressure applied between the injury and the heart at the proper one of the six points where the main arteries lie close to a bone. Knowledge of the exact location of these pressure points is, of course, essential. The use of such digital pressure recommends itself because it requires no equipment and because it answers the purpose immediately and pending whatever additional procedure may be necessary.

Bleeding from some wounds can be stopped by the use of a dressing or compress, which is the name given to material applied directly over the wound. The material most commonly used for this purpose is gauze, which is preferable because it is absorbent and does not exclude the air. It is of the utmost importance that the compress be not only clean in the ordinary sense but that it be free of germs, which is to say it must be sterile. Use of the compress alone is seldom sufficient to prevent serious bleeding, but is helpful in causing the blood to clot and is often desirable in connection with digital pressure or the tourniquet.

It should be apparent from this brief discussion of the subject that although the tourniquet, when properly applied, is invaluable under certain circumstances, it is by no means a panacea for the prevention of bleeding, that a knowledge of its use is essential, and that other procedure, which likewise requires a degree of special knowledge and training, is very frequently indicated.

DANGEROUS BAGGAGE

Captured

The heart-stopping moments Sharon waited for Dennis to return along that treacherous cat-walk seemed like eons carved out of eternity. Fruitlessly, her mind pursued one plan after another. Should she go after Dennis? Should she ask one of the shadowy figures moving through the warehouse to go to his aid. Because surely he had had time to walk around the building? Something must have happened to him. There must be some way she could—

And then she saw him—moving quickly, sure-footedly along the narrow walk. Forgetting, for the moment, her disobedience of Goodwin's orders, she stepped out of her hiding place, ran toward him.

"Oh, Dennis! I thought surely—"

"Hush," he put a hand over her mouth.

"You are going to have to learn to obey orders, Sharon," Goodwin's voice like a steel knife at her back. "Any sign of disturbance, Doyle!"

"Yes, sir. The building is surrounded."

"Are you sure?"

"Absolutely. I waited out there until I saw at least half a dozen men slip out of the next building, start moving in on us."

Goodwin muttered an oath, spoke rapidly to the men.

"Carry out your orders. Fire the minute you see them. Then, gripping Sharon's arm, he propelled her up the gang plank onto the deck of the darkened boat. "You get below—and stay there," he snapped. "And this time—do as your told!"

He thrust her down a narrow companionway with such violence Sharon clutched at a hand rail to keep from falling. Below a small light was burning. For a moment, she couldn't think why it all looked so familiar. Then she realized. This was Goodwin's own yacht, Ladybird. She'd only been aboard once and then just for a few moments. But she was sure it was the same.

The same boat—she pushed along the passageway to the main cabin—but stripped now of its elaborate furnishings. And piled high with cargo! Bags of wheat, she noticed. And under that what she realized. Was Goodwin taking the shipment to Los Angeles himself? Was that what he meant when he said he was taking no chances that this load be lost too? Was it because—

The sharp report of a gun redirected her thoughts. Shooting! She raced back to the companionway, up to the main deck. Dimly, she saw hurrying figures in the gloom. Shrinking into a shadow, Sharon watched, listened. If only Dennis weren't in there. Why hadn't he stayed with his good, safe gas station job? And why was he so frightened, so sure he couldn't get away now? She had to find him.

Once more she ran back into that fateful building. Her eyes, accustomed now to the dark, identified none of the men moving near her. Under foot, something crunched softly. Stopping, she touched it with her hand. Grain! The wheat! They were ripping open the sacks, dumping the precious wheat out onto the floor.

"Spread it as thin as you can, boys," someone muttered, panting as he clambered up the pile of sacks, slashing at each of the fat bags.

No Escape

STIFLING dust choked her as she stumbled, tripping. Sharon searched for Dennis. Goodwin she located almost immediately. Moving rapidly from one point to another, his sharp commands losing none of their authority because he whispered them.

But still no Dennis.

Circling to keep out of Goodwin's way, she went back to the side opening. Maybe he had made his escape. Maybe he had gone along that cat-walk, dropped to the barge, made his way across that to the next dock. It would be one way to get out without running into Goodwin. And, if you moved quickly, perhaps without running into any of the men Dennis saw. She would try anyway. She might even get through to call help for Goodwin.

Slipping out along the narrow catwalk, she wondered now why she hadn't thought of it before. Goodwin would have refused her permission, of course. Naturally, he was trying his best to protect her. Anxious, distraught, he must be out of his mind with the fearful weight of responsibility. That would account for his strange behaviour. If she could only get help to him in time.

The bulky raincoat hampered her so, when she got to the end of the walk, stood some ten feet above the barge rocking gently below, she pulled off the coat, rolled it into a bundle, dropped it down onto the barge. A moment later, she followed it. The jump dazed her for a moment, set the small barge to lurching.

When she'd caught her breath again, she pulled on the coat, ran across the barge to a short ladder, up that to the next pier.

That was easy, she thought congratulating herself as she stepped into the shadow again, and turning, waited to listen for any sign that she had been seen. Not a movement anywhere. The whole waterfront seemed to lie sleeping. One certainly would never suspect the frenzy of activity going on in the big warehouse. She had just left, she thought. Maybe Dennis' excitement had set his imagination on fire. Probably the 'men closing in' were merely watchmen making their rounds.

Sharon, her breathing going back to normal now, started down the long pier, keeping well to the shadow of the building. A hundred yards ahead she saw the gateway to the street beyond. A hundred yards between her and help for Goodwin—and Dennis!

Then she felt a hand close on her arm, felt herself jerked to an abrupt halt.

"Where you going, sissy?" a guttural demand from a bulky figure who had stepped out of the shadow.

So frightened she could not speak, Sharon reacted automatically. Her terror giving her redoubled strength, she tried to fight loose of this steely grip on her arm. Jerking free, she turned, raced toward the open gateway. And, but for the bulky raincoat, she might have made it. But its long flapping skirt whipped around her knees, swaddled her effectively.

Her pursuer, only a few paces behind, overtook her, checked her flight this time by swinging a powerful arm around her waist, holding her so tight she could only flail his broad chest with her fists.

"Not so fast, girlie," he said, setting her on her feet again, but keeping firm hold of her arm while a second figure appeared, held her other arm captive.

"What were you doing down here this time of night?"

Explosion

SHARON, realizing that further struggle was only a waste of her strength, stood quietly without answering.

"Better speak up, girlie. Tell us what you know about what's going on over there."

Still Sharon didn't answer. Had he actually seen her leaving the warehouse, she tried to guess. Or was he just leading her into betrayal with his questions.

His grip on her arm tightened. "Speak up. Who are you?"

"My name is Sharon Doyle—if that means anything to you," she said coolly.

"What you doing down here."

"That's my business."

"Oh, no it ain't! Not altogether. It gets to be our business when little girls dress up in men's coats and climb around the wharf where they don't belong. Now speak up. What's going on?"

Sharon glanced at her second captor who stood, a tall silent shadow beside her. "What if I don't choose to tell."

"Then we'll just assume you're guilty." He turned to the silent one.

"Huh, boss?"

The man nodded.

"Guilty of what?" Sharon demanded, realizing now that the longer she could stall, the more time Goodwin would have to prepare against this mysterious attack. He might even get the Ladybird under way if he had time enough.

"Well, I reckon you know more about that than we would." The big bulky man chuckled softly. "What are they loading onto that boat over there."

"Peanuts," Sharon answered, flippantly.

"Better tell us what you know, lady. It'll get pretty tough with you otherwise."

"Is it your business to go around intimidating people?" she demanded sarcastically. "Or are you just a bully by preference?"

"Have it your way. But you'll have to come along with us now."

"Why?—bracing herself against the pressure on her arm. "Because I say so, that's why."

"What about you?" she demanded, peering at the darkened figure still silent beside her.

"Any reason why, in this free country, should be forced to talk, to explain anything I don't care to explain, to strangers whose right even to question me, I challenge?"

Suddenly, with a deafening roar, came the white flash of an explosion. Instantly, the interior of the warehouse opposite burst into a hundred raging fires. Figures of men, black silhouettes against the sheets of flame, racing from the building!

As if in a horrible nightmare, Sharon watched, stupefied by the horror she saw.

"The wheat!" she murmured. "It's the wheat burning."

"Done a good job, didn't they?"—the heavy voice beside her. Using kerosene, probably. We should of closed in on them sooner."

"We couldn't until we had the evidence." Her tall captor's voice, cool, and strangely familiar.

Sharon stared at him, his face lighted by the sheet of flame opposite. Her second captor was she felt her heart come to a stop—Tom Stafford!

blanks may be had from the county agricultural agent or district forester, or directly from the State Conservation Department at Albany. The trees will be shipped in April or early May, on the date set on the order.

Under the agricultural conservation program, a payment of $7.50 an acre may be earned by planting 1000 trees of approved kinds. By planting two acres, $15 may be earned. This sum is apart from the regular soil-building allowance of the farm.

Professor Pond says a man and a boy or girl can plant 1000 trees in a day.

Film Thrills Preferred

Motion picture thrills held the attention of a near-capacity audience at a theatre near Cardiff, South Wales, despite a bombing attack which damaged the theatre itself. The audience remained in its seats as the raid got under way and no one was injured. Damage to the theatre came from a bomb which fell some distance away.

Normal School News

Pilot Training

A civilian pilot training course has been started at the Normal. This course will offer 72 hours of ground training and 35 to 45 hours of flight training. This instruction is open to young men between the ages of 18 and 28 who are American citizens and possess two years or more of college work or its equivalent. The course is offered without cost to the trainees and will be completed in June. The instruction and training is being given by the Reid School of Aeronautics, New Hackensack, N. Y. The opportunity for enrollment is still open to all young men in this section of the Hudson Valley who can meet the above requirements. Those interested should contact L. D. Campbell, C. P., co-ordinator, State Normal School, New Paltz.

Band Concert

Howard B. Hoffman, directed the Junior High School band in a concert in the assembly Tuesday. The program opened with every-one singing "America." The band then presented these selections: Zamecnik's "Columbia Overture," "The Bunny Parade" by Frederick Van Norman, "Triton" by Courtney, and "Comrades" by Wellesley.

Carol Bergman presented as a trumpet solo, Schubert's "Serenade" and was accompanied at the piano by Cleveland Hall.

The latter part of the assembly program was devoted to sorority singing. Each sorority, dressed in its respective colors, appeared separately before the audience and presented several of its songs and its call. In order of their appearance they were, Ago, Arethusa, Artemis, Clio, Pi Sigma Lambda and Theta Phi.

Red Cross Knitting

Miss Barbara Pfaff and her committee for the Red Cross extended appreciation for the knitting that has been done. They feel that the articles display fine workmanship. Miss Maude Richards and Miss Jennie Lee Dann lead the list of knitters as they have passed in the most finished articles. Others who have finished work since the last report was published are Miss Esther Bensley, Miss Edith Holt, Miss Rebecca McKenna, Marie Bobb, Ruth Britt, Florence McKinney, Jean Rogers and Doris Tiger. If there are any names omitted from this list of workers, the committee would appreciate it if you would give your name to Miss Pfaff so that it might be included in the final tabulation.

There have been more volunteers to do Red Cross knitting but, because of lack of wool, they could not be accommodated.

New Sorority Members

Alpha Sigma Omicron initiated five new members at their meeting at Miss Barbara Pfaff's home Tuesday. Those initiated were: Adele Abraham, Louise De Barros, Elizabeth Maher, Earl Schwajke and Frances Walsh.

To Present Play

Paul Loomis' "For Her Che-ild's Sake," is the play chosen by the new Paltz Players for their annual performance to be given Thursday, March 5, in the auditorium.

The story centers around a down-trodden heroine and is really a burlesque on an old-fashioned melodrama. Many players were auditioned before the final selection of a cast was made and now rehearsals are being held under the direction of Miss Rebecca McKenna, adviser to the club. The young heroine, Nancy Paine, is played by Ruth Neisen, her hard-hearted husband, Hillary is George Laug; Marcella Paine, a hypocritical sister, is played by Isabel Farr, and another sister, Midge, is Joan Howard. Lawrence Bergen takes the part of Gaylord Duckworth, the villain; Dorothy Bullock, played by Elizabeth Worden, is a trained nurse; and the young hero, Fairfax Kisselbergh, is played by William Halecek. Marjorie Reiss and William Demers play the parts respectively of Amelia and Dawson, servants of the Paine household; and Loretta Ellis, is the society matron, Mrs. Hedda Barrington; Francis Wright her son. Kay Van Keuren is the mysterious Beatrice Hudnut.

Sorority Rush

Second sorority rush period was held on Wednesday and today for the freshmen and upperclassmen who have not been pledged to sororities as yet this year.

Musical Treat

Burtan L. Jackson, artist of the bounding mallets gave an exhibition at the assembly on Tuesday. Mr. Jackson, virtuoso of the marimba, first achieved fame as a player of this instrument when he performed as soloist with the hundred-piece marimba orchestra at the Century of Progress in Chicago. He has had a long period of concert engagements in Europe and in America, having appeared in Paris, Brussels, and New York as soloist with the hundred-piece International Marimba Symphony Orchestra.

Barn Dance

The annual country life barn dance will be held tonight in the normal school gym. The club extends an invitation to the entire school to come and join in the frolicking. There will be both modern dancing and square dancing. The Kentucky Moonshiners will supply the music for the sets that will be called. Costumes are optional but there will be a court of judges to pass sentence on those who do come fittingly attired.

The committee chairman is Charlotte Covert. Working with her are Loretta O'Donnell and Rose Tocco, handling the publicity; Nancy Dean and Charles Teyman, selling tickets; Harriet Corwin, Ardell Greene, and Barbara Sherman, making invitations; Carolyn Alton and Gloria Scios, taking care of the music and dancing; Edwin Heroy and John Horn, doing the clean-up; and Betty Stittler and Lorraine Elkenstierna arranging refreshments. Gordon Anderson has charge of the entertainment.

FOOD TIPS

FROM THE COOKBOOKLETS

MACAROONS, MERINGUES, KISSES ARE INCLUDED IN NEW BOOKLET ON COOKIES

Sugar and frothy egg whites and other things nice — that's what such dainties are made of. It's a simple matter to make them, too, with the excellent recipes and helpful advice given in the new Cookie Book, No. 17 in the series of Cookbooklets being offered to readers of the Kingston Daily Freeman.

Success in making cookies of this type largely depends, of course, upon the amount of air which can be beaten into the egg whites to make them light. One precaution which should be observed is not to overbeat. The whites should be beaten stiff but not dry. When the egg beater is removed from the bowl the beaten whites should be smooth and shiny. They will cling to the side of the bowl if they are beaten just the right amount of time. Incidentally, the egg whites beat better at room temperature.

The batter for macaroons or meringues should be just stiff enough to hold its shape when dropped on the baking sheet. When baked on unglazed paper the paper may be removed by moistening it on the underside with a cloth wrung out of cold water and letting it stand for a few minutes.

Beat the egg whites with the cold water until stiff, but not dry. Beat in the sugar and the vanilla. Add the salt and flour and blend carefully. Fold in the melted chocolate and finally the coconut. Drop in teaspoons on letter paper on a baking sheet and bake in a slow oven (325° F.).

Nut Kisses
2 egg whites
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/4 t. spoon vanilla
Dash of salt
1/4 cup nuts

Chop the nuts very fine. Any type of nuts will serve. Peanuts or pecans are especially good. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry. Beat in the sugar, a little at a time. Fold in the vanilla, salt and nuts. Drop by teaspoons on ungreased letter paper and let stand until the surface is slightly dried. This will take several hours or overnight. Bake in a slow oven (250°-275° F.) until firm and very slightly browned. Remove from paper with a spatula. The paper may be placed on boards in the oven. This will make the bottoms soft and the kisses may be stuck together when removed. Makes about 2 dozen. If well dried out in the baking and stored in a tight can, they will keep for a long time.

Who wouldn't be delighted with a box of delectable cookies like these at any season? When you entertain, too, it's well to provide variety. The new Cookie Book presents 250 new recipes.

Here are two of the 250 delicious recipes in the Cookie Book:

Chocolate Macaroons

2/3 cup sugar
4 egg whites
1/4 cup water
2 teaspoons vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon flour
2 ounces chocolate, melted
2 1/2 cups shredded coconut

To obtain each Cookbooklet present 13c and one coupon from the Kingston Daily Freeman at any outlet mentioned therein. You may order by mail if you wish. Just send one coupon from page two and 13c for each booklet (13c for book and 3c for postage) to the Cookbooklet Dept., Kingston Daily Freeman, Freeman Square, Kingston, N. Y.

Flashes of Life
Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Walking With Luck

Louisville, Ky. — Arnold J. Rosenberg vouches for this one. Last week he lost the setting from a ring at a basketball game. Last night he went to another game at the same gymnasium. When he got home he discovered the setting imbedded by its prongs in the sole of a shoe, which he said was not of the same pair he wore to the game last week.

Down With Rumors

Marshfield, Mass. — A "who told you so club" has been formed among townspeople here. Members, on hearing rumors helpful to the enemy, are pledged to trace them to their source so they may be exposed as false.

Clearly Labeled

New Britain, Conn. — The New Britain Herald prints communications from Tokyo under a heading which says: "Believe this and they'll tell you another."

They Saw Stars

Los Angeles—Venus—the planet—caused no end of trouble during the west coast's latest blackout.

A Huntington Beach air raid warden identified it as a searchlight.

Others reported the planet variously as a flare, a bursting shell, a flaming airplane and a mysterious omen.

No Fare

Phoenix, Ariz.—The judge fined Stanley Zalukowski $10 for appearing on the street without his pants—despite a good alibi. A cab driver took the trousers as security for his fare.

Regular Contributor

Walnut, Ill. — Mrs. Charles Tornow, 68, contributed two sons to the American army in the first World War; Edward, 48, her eldest, and Martin, killed 10 days before the Armistice.

Her contribution to the army in the second world war: Two more sons—Archie, 33, with the 33rd Division, and Laverne, 24, her youngest son, inducted this week.

Mrs. Tornow, a widow, has four other sons and three daughters. A substantial contribution toward the $45,000 American Red Cross War Fund to be raised by the Ulster County Committee will help keep the fighting men, healthy, happy and efficient.

GRANGE NEWS

ASBURY GRANGE

A fine attendance of the Asbury Grange members held a patriotic evening in honor of the February presidents. The lecturer had planned an enjoyable program which consisted of patriotic readings and songs assisted by Clarence Finger on his trumpet, also three tableaux, Lincoln splitting rails with Merritt Rylea as Lincoln, Washington chopping down the cherry tree and Betsy Ross making the flag. Mrs. George Saile as Betsy. Games were also played. Preceding the meeting a covered dish supper was served. George W. Saile was appointed delegate to Pomona Grange which will be held in Clintondale March 6. All members were urged to attend.

The young folks are planning another dance for March 6 with the Four Aces of Kingston furnishing the music. Despite extreme weather a fine time was had by all at the last dance. A donation was sent to the Tuberculosis Hospital.

MISS FAITH R. KUNST

Closing Program Held At Night School

Closing exercises were held last evening at the high school in honor of the completion of the night school term which has been in session two nights a week since last fall. The school this year was under the direction of Hubert Hoderath and a staff of teachers.

The musical program included group singing and two violin selections, Brahms' "Waltz in A Major" and Godowsky's "In Old Vienna," played by Michael Frank accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Harold Ackley.

The dramatic class which had been conducted by Miss Madeleine Tarrant gave a one-act play, "Dear, Dear Children," by Sophie Kerr. It is the story of the problems of children as faced by a group of young married women. The cast included: Miss Martha Barnett, Miss Rita Fautz, Mrs. Adam Thiel, Mrs. Russell Gaenzle, Mrs. Roy Webster, Mrs. William Snyder, Mrs. Ida K. Sherman and Miss Helen Cragan.

Superintendent Arthur J. Laidlaw spoke to the assembly praising the educational systems of the republics where people learn the privilege of attending free public schools. He said he felt much of the courage and spirit shown by the soldiers in the Philippines and East Indies was due to the training they had received in American schools.

He also spoke of the changes being made in education. Today schools are holding classes 24 hours a day, six days a week with the possibility of Sunday classes being organized. This strenuous schedule is due to the demand for trained workers on machines and with the use of tools. He believes that only through the schools' education can the democratic way of life be maintained.

"Macbeth" was presented in Irish recently at the Gaelic Theatre in Galway, Eire.

Spring Style Wears Corsage!

What could be more charming than these fresh, flowing curtains of white organdie, crowned with artificial flowers!

You can make them easily yourself—ruffles, swag and all—with a few professional hints.

Your swag is nothing but a straight piece of goods about one and a third times the length of your valance board, and twice as deep as the finished swag.

You snip off its ends on a slant and cut the lower edge in a broad scallop. Sew the ruffle to this lower edge and stitch tape to the top edge; then drape swag and tack tape to valance board.

Measuring the side curtains, add 2 inches for shrinkage. When you sew the ruffles on allow plenty of fullness at the corners.

Simple, with our 32-page instruction booklet to guide you! Shows with diagrams and pictures how to make swags and cascades, fitted valances, French pleats, cornices and many lovely curtain and drapery styles.

Guests of Honor at Farewell Party

Freeman Photo

The Choir Mothers of the First Reformed Church were hostesses last evening at a farewell surprise party held at the church house, in honor of their president, Mrs. Everett Schutt. Since this group was organized, Mrs. Schutt has been a faithful worker. Her children, Miss Carol Schutt and Marvin Schutt, have been members of the children's choir.

Shown in the picture taken at the dinner above are Mr. and Mrs. Everett Schutt, Miss Carol and Marvin Schutt, who will leave Kingston in the near future to make their home in Newburgh.

Prior to the regular meeting a dinner was served at which time Mrs. Schutt was presented with a photograph album of the children's choir and snapshots of the choir mothers. As a lasting token an Egyptian bowl of hammered copper and silver with candlesticks to match was given to Mrs. Schutt. The presentations were made by the Rev. Herbert C. Greenland, associate minister and children's choir director of the church.

The tables were decorated with blue candles and a large bouquet of yellow calendulas and daffodils. Following the meeting, at which Mrs. Frederick Merritt was elected president, an evening of games was enjoyed.

In addition to the honored guests, those who attended were the Rev. and Mrs. Herbert C. Greenland, W. Whiting Fredenburgh, organist and senior choir director; Mrs. Arthur Laidlaw, vice-president; Mrs. John Egan, treasurer; Mrs. Floyd Rich, secretary; Mrs. Henry C. Page, Mrs. Albert Milliken, Mrs. Leonard Hinkley, Mrs. Edwin Lacey, Mrs. Harry Halverson, Mrs. Harvey S. Kolts, Mrs. Abram Molyneux, Mrs. Arthur Oudemool, Mrs. Chas. Bouton, Mrs. John A. Comstock, Mrs. Harry Shurtz, Mrs. Clarence Freer, Mrs. George Radcliff, Mrs. Frederick Supples, Mrs. William Winslow, Mrs. Helen Davis, Mrs. Clifford Rose, Mrs. Frederick Merritt, Mrs. Walter Danford, Mrs. Bruce Van Kleeck, Mrs. Robert Torrens, Jr., Mrs. George Swart, Mrs. Emma Steen, Mrs. Henry Reed, Mrs. Joseph Hughes, Mrs. Victor Roth, Mrs. Paul Storey, Mrs. Melvin Hornbeck.

We were invited to a midday dinner (1 o'clock) to celebrate a relative's birthday. After accepting, we turned down two other invitations for later that same day, thinking we were expected to spend the entire day with our relatives. We were dumbfounded when at about 4:30 in the afternoon, it was explained to us that they were very sorry not to be able to urge us to stay on any longer, but as it so happened, they had promised some friends they would be around for tea.

To this I am sorry to have to say that (unless also asked for bridge) 3 o'clock, or longest, 3:30, is about the latest anyone would be expected to stay after a meal at 1 o'clock. On occasion when talk is exceptionally interesting and people, therefore, are forgetful of the time, 4 o'clock would be extreme. Had the hosts intended the invitation to mean the rest of the day, they would have been expected to say "come to dinner at one and spend the afternoon, or stay for supper—or spend the night—or the week-end" or for however long it might be.

Attention! To Those Who Like Jewelry

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there such a thing as wearing too much jewelry? I have in mind particularly row after row of bracelets.

Answer: There is a limit, yes. Although it is true that some people can wear much more than others and not look laden down, or let us say, conspicuous, and others very little. Very thin, big-boned people can wear enormous stones and row after row of bracelets and it is true that we don't notice quantities of jewelry the way we used to because in this day of costume jewelry we have become accustomed to seeing unlimited amounts of it worn at all times.

Even so, when in doubt it's a good idea to remember what the little girl asked "Panama Hattie" about the trimmings on her dress: "Why don't you take some off? You look so funny."

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "BUFFET DINNERS, LUNCHEONS AND SUPPERS." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of this paper, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

Good Taste Today

Receives Complaints About Ambiguity of Invitations

Complaints about the ambiguity of the invitation which arrives addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. . . . and family" as well as against the unfairness of having someone preface her invitation with "What are you and John going to do next Thursday evening?" are understandable.

The first can't help creating doubt in the mind of Mother as to whether the younger children, and even Grandmother who lives with the family, are all expected—if not all, then which?

The second, even when asked by one whom you like very much, is likely to put you on guard lest answering "nothing" will leave you trapped—in other words, forced—to agree to no matter what is proposed. But it was very unfortunate that there could have been any confusion in this situation.

We were invited to a midday dinner (1 o'clock) to celebrate a relative's birthday. After accepting, we turned down two other invitations for later that same day, thinking we were expected to spend the entire day with our relatives. AROUSE FLOW OF LIVER BILE

To Help Correct That "Half-Sick," "Tired," "All-Gone" Feeling

Normally the liver should discharge about a quart of precious digestion-aiding juices a day. If it doesn't—a scanty flow—a slowing up may mean Sick Headaches, so-called Biliousness, Poor Digestion with that half-sick, tired, all-gone feeling and most probably Constipation.

Probably all you need is a gentle excitant: just take a little daily dose of that world-famous Kruschen Salts—half a level teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water about half an hour before breakfast. This helps to release the flow of bile with its gentle bowel action. Try Kruschen—a famous English formula—for 30 days to shake off "run-down" feeling and get a real "lift." If you do not feel 100% better get your money back.

Rubber for Girdles, Other Things, Is Out

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Further use of rubber in production of women's corsets and girdles—and men's suspenders and garters—was definitely ruled out today for the duration.

The war production board said no more rubber would be available for the thread essential to such intimate accessories. The ruling, announced late yesterday, reinstated an earlier no-more corsets order which had been modified to some extent last month.

Corsetiers promised they would do the best they could with the materials on hand, mentioning the possibility of employing knitted gussets in milady's girdle.

Cvek Dies Tonight Ossining, N. Without even that comfort—for Judge James M. Barrett left out the phrase—the 24-year-old vagabond who authorities said had admitted robbing or raping at least 14 women in eastern cities pays with his life tonight. Nine months of waiting in Sing Sing prison's death house will end for the convicted strangler of Mrs. Catherine Pappas, 34, at 11 o'clock (E. W. T.) when Cvek is scheduled to be electrocuted.

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—There were plenty of moderate ground gainers in today's stock market but as many were unable to make headway.

Dealings were spiritless at the start and transfers for the full stretch were at the rate of around 300,000 shares.

Another of the low volumes since last June. Most rails slipped and fractional variations either way ruled near the final hour.

Boardroom analysts thought the war news was about a stand-off marketwise although reports of American naval successes and further blasts at the Japanese fleet in the southwest Pacific provided encouragement. Persistent tax doubts and fears of more labor rifts restrained many potential bidders.

Bonds were narrowly irregular and major commodities improved. Among stocks Douglas Aircraft again moved up in reflection of its record earnings statement. Ahead at intervals were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, General Electric, Standard Oil (N. J.), General Motors, Boeing, American Telephone and du Pont.

Inclined to lag were Southern Railway, Great Northern, Anaconda, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Sears Roebuck, Youngstown Sheet, Phelps Dodge and Consolidated Edison.

Frederick Thomas Pleads Not Guilty On 'Poster' Charge

The notices found in various localities in the city are in the same handwriting as the note found last night by Officer Krom.

Thomas is employed as a watchman at the county quarry in the rear of the municipal stadium.

He is married, and his wife was present in court. When her husband was called to stand before the bar she informed the court that her husband was hard of hearing.

Chief of Police Charles Phinney said that the first of these written attacks on the President were found about six months ago, and that since then a number had appeared. Some had been found pasted on windows, while others were tacked against the side of buildings and on telephone poles.

The police, since the notes first appeared, have been conducting a search for the writer of the notes and believe now that the search has proved successful. All of the many notes that were found and are now in charge of the police appear to be written by the same hand.

Divorce Granted

As a result of a hearing held before Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirck on January 3, 1942, an interlocutory decree of divorce in favor of June E. Franz, plaintiff and against Edward Franz, defendant, was recently entered in the Ulster county clerk's office. Chris J. Flanagan appeared on the hearing for June E. Franz and the defendant was represented by Andrew J. Cook.

Sentences Suspended

Two men, both charged with public intoxication, were given suspended sentences when arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court today. They were Larris F. White, 33, of Woodbridge, N. J., and Thomas Moran, 72, of this city.

Everett-Treadwell Company Is Host At Anniversary

The Everett & Treadwell Company, local wholesale grocery and feed firm, observed its 73rd anniversary last evening by tendering to its 35 employees a banquet at Judie's Restaurant on Albany avenue.

There was a three-fold purpose in the holding of the dinner at this time for while the event marked the 73rd anniversary of the establishment of the business by the late Major James H. Everett, it also was in observance of the departure of one of the present employees for army service and C. S. Treadwell, president of the firm, also took the opportunity to announce a 10 per cent increase in pay for the employees retroactive to January 1.

In announcing the increase in pay exclusive of the officers, store managers and salesmen, Mr. Treadwell stated that the 10 per cent increase in pay for the months of January and February would be presented in the form of Defense Saving Stamps while from March 1 on the increase would be found in the regular pay envelopes. He expressed the hope that many of the employees would take at least a portion of their pay increase in Defense Stamps as a patriotic duty to the country.

The Everett & Treadwell Co. was founded in the year 1869, at which time Major James H. Everett started the flour and feed business on North Front street. Joseph C. Treadwell joined the company a few years later and was active in its management until his death in 1899. The company activities were then carried on by Mr. Everett until 1926, when C. S. Treadwell was elected president and the assumed active management of the business.

In the year 1891 the present Broadway building was erected just south of the West Shore Railroad crossing where railroad facilities were made available and the wholesale grocery business was moved to that locality. Since the original building was erected there have been numerous additions to the plant to bring it up to its present status.

President C. S. Treadwell, who presided last evening, said that during his 43 years connection with the business, which included many years prior to assuming the presidency, he had always found the employees of the firm loyal and the success of the company he said had been due in no small degree to the faithful service of the employees.

Calling on the 35 employees of both the Broadway plant and the North Front street plant to stand, the years of service of each employee was called off and as their number of years of service was reached they were seated. Howard Wilbur was the last man standing with 32 years of service as the record, exclusive of Mr. Treadwell, who said he could boast of 43 years with the firm.

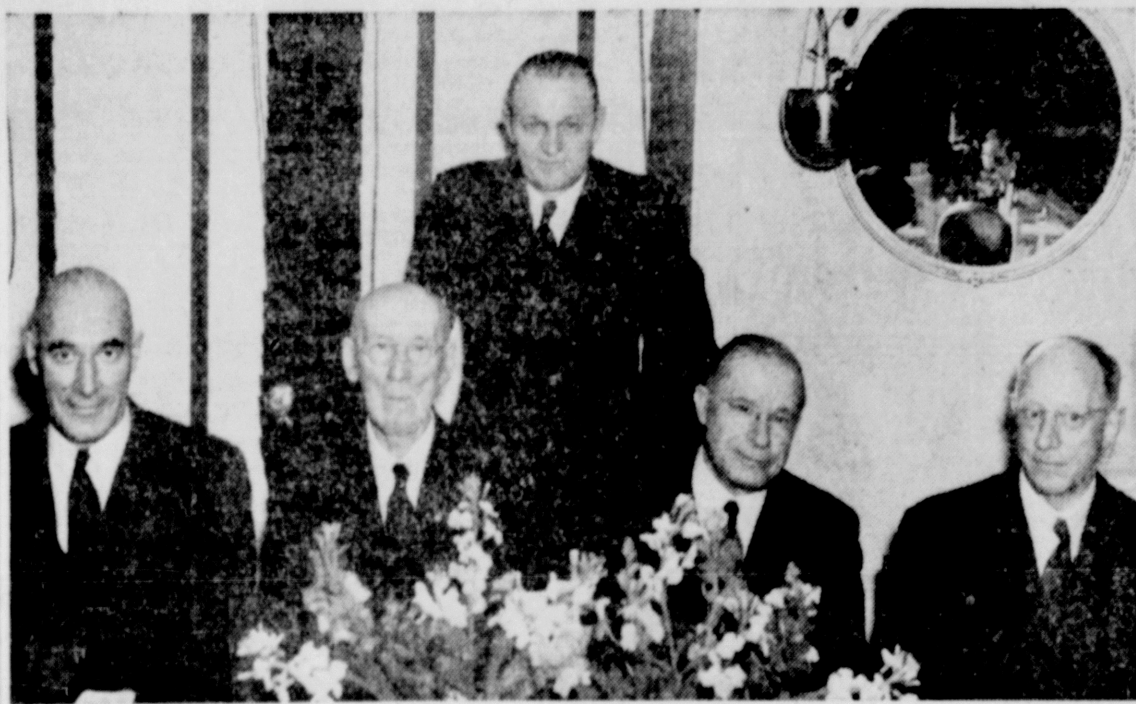

In Good Old Days

Both Mr. Treadwell and Mr. Wilbur spoke briefly of the changes which have come and of the old days when teams were used for distribution. Days when after a snowstorm of considerable size business would remain at a standstill for days until roads were broken open and it was possible to resume business. In those days prior to the automobile there was no attempt made to plow snow or open roads as today. Mr. Treadwell also told of the expansion of the business and of the "cornerstone" laying in 1915 when a new addition was erected at the Broadway plant. He thanked the employees for their loyal service and then announced the increase in pay which the directors of the company recently voted.

A. C. Quimby, secretary of the firm, presented the employees with Defense Stamps representing this increase for the months of January and February and said that in some cases the amount already was sufficient to purchase a Defense Bond.

Joseph Hasbrouck called on the employees for a rising vote of thanks to the firm for the increase in pay and as a token of appreciation for the "fairness of the firm to its employees." Others who spoke were Andy Misove and Jim Scott who referred to the 50th anniversary party of the firm and called on those now in employ who had attended that party. There were seven present employees who were at the 50th anniversary party.

W. E. Finch, manager of the North Front street store, brought greetings from that store and thanked to the firm for its action.

Before the conclusion of the evening's festivities Mr. Treadwell on behalf of the firm said he had a duty to perform which perhaps was not so pleasant as had been the previous ones. He called on Frank H. Roe to stand and then stated that Frank was shortly to enter the armed services of the country and on behalf of the firm presented him with a substantial check, congratulated him and wished him a safe return. Mr. Roe expressed his thanks briefly and said he hoped he would be able to bring back a couple of Japs for his trouble.

To Richard D. Davis, who will shortly be called, and to Mr. Roe were presented an army comfort kit by Miss Treadwell.

Mr. Treadwell announced that the same sum in the form of a check would go to any other employee who might be called in the future for war service since the firm had agreed to that policy.

To each of the women employees Mrs. Treadwell gave as favors note paper and to the men employed she presented an ash tray.

Officers of the Everett & Treadwell Co. are C. S. Treadwell, president; E. V. D. Basten, vice president; W. H. Van Etten, treasurer; A. C. Quimby, secretary. All were present except Mr. Van Etten. Other employees of the firm attending were:

C. C. DuMont, J. G. Garon, C. A. Rhymor, J. W. Scott, Howard Wilbur, Joseph Hasbrouck, Ethel S. Martin, Caroline E. Hatch, Sara E. Osterhoudt, Albert Sonnenburg, Andrew Misove, H. C. Gray, J. B. From the North Front street store was: W. E. Finch, manager, Claudia M. Williams, J. F. Voigt, Raymond LeFever and Ralph Palen.

Irving Gardner and LeRoy Terwilliger were prevented from being present because of illness.

Lawyers Consider Proposed Laws at Special Meeting

At a special meeting of the Ulster County Bar Association, called by Vincent G. Connelly, president of the association, and held at the court house Thursday afternoon, following the close of court session, members discussed a number of bills now pending before the state legislature. There were about 40 members present for the meeting.

The bills were brought before the association in a report by John M. Cashin, chairman of the committee on new legislation.

Approved, after discussion, were the following bills:

Providing a uniform law to govern all courts in cities of 20,000 or more, with the exception of New York city. Among provisions of the proposed law are those which would give city courts jurisdiction in cases up to $1,000 (Kingston city court is now limited to $500), and permitting the service of city court summons throughout the county.

Providing for serving of summons by registered mail.

Permitting examination before trial in cases involving municipal corporations.

Not Approved

Pending legislation which was not approved included:

Allowing the court, instead of the attorney, to examine jurors.

Providing pay for state and municipal employees who are drafted for military service.

Permitting defendants in criminal cases, with the exception of first degree murder, to waive a jury trial.

Six Enlisted Men Die in Accident

Rock Island Freight Rips Through Loaded Bus

Enid, Okla., Feb. 26 (AP)—A Rock Island freight train ripped through a bus today killing six enlisted men in the Army Air Corps.

Twenty-five others were injured in the crash which occurred in a blinding snow storm, half a mile west of Enid.

The list of dead supplied by Capt. Calvin W. Hammond, press relations officer of the Enid Flying School:

Pvt. Herbert J. Taylor, 22, Lake Kerr, Fla.
Pvt. Eugene L. Underwood, 23, Rogersville, Pa.
Sgt. Eugene J. Sanders, 26, Yonkum, Tex.
Pvt. Vernon Ohnsted, 26, Georgetown, Minn.
Pvt. Robert W. Walker, 23, Bay City, Tex.
Pvt. Cyril J. Minarcik, 21, Chicago.

Critically injured were: Staff Sgt. Ernest M. Shults, 25, Forresterburg, Tex.

Pvt. John Ludlum, 25, Battle Creek, Mich.

Names and extent of the injuries of the other victims were not available immediately.

There were no witnesses to the accident other than the men in the bus and train crew, Captain Hammond said.

Captain Hammond said Smith evidently was blinded by the swirling snow.

Maj. W. A. Stephens, post adjutant of the Enid Flying School, said the bus carried between 35 and 40 men.

None of the men were pilots, Major Stephens said.

Objections Withdrawn In Ten Hagen Case

Objections were withdrawn in the will contest action which was scheduled to have come up for trial this morning before Surrogate Harry H. Flemming and a jury when Fannie Ten Hagen and Harry Ten Hagen were to have contested the probate of the will of Lewis Ten Hagen, late of New Paltz.

Mr. Ten Hagen under his will left his property to his housekeeper, Mary McElree. Objections were filed by Fannie Ten Hagen, sister of deceased, and Harry Ten Hagen, nephew, Roger H. Loughran appeared for the sister and A. J. Cook, Jr., for Harry Ten Hagen. Peter Harp, who drew the will for Mr. Ten Hagen, a neighbor, and George F. Kaufman appeared for the proponents.

Capital Has Air Raid Alert

All Clear Sounds 13 Minutes After First Flash

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Washington had an unexplained air raid alert this morning at 1:31, with the all-clear sounded 13 minutes later.

The alert warning was flashed on the police radio system, after a radio operator there heard an alert given over army radio communications for the Hampton Roads, Va., area.

There were unofficial reports that Richmond, Newport News, and Hampton, Va., also had alerts.

Secretary of War Stimson told his press conference he had not reports on the alert, the first sounded in the nation's capital since the war began.

"I slept through it," Stimson said, smiling, "and didn't know anything about it until I got here a few minutes ago."

Road Construction At State Expense Goes to Governor

Albany — Arterial highways through cities of the third class will henceforth be constructed at state expense under the provision of the Riley bill, passed by the State Assembly this week. The bill, previously passed by the Senate, now goes to the governor for his approval.

Introduced by Senator James W. Riley of Olean, the measure would require the state to construct and reconstruct highways through cities along streets or routes designated by the city. The highways through the cities would be the same width as the connecting highway on either side of the cities with an additional 8-foot strip on each side of the street for parking purposes. If, however, a city wished to have wider highways through the city, the additional cost would have to be borne entirely by the city. The cost of maintaining the highways curbing and drainage would also be borne by the cities.

The measure applies to all cities having a population of 50,000 or less. At the present time the state builds highways running through all villages.

"The measure would provide a needed service for the motoring public by having the state build modern highways through cities," said Senator Riley. "This charge, it seems to me, is properly

Try Various Ways To Obtain Labor

Farmerettes and Convicts Sought in Some States

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 26—Farmers of the 11 northeastern states are adopting unique methods to cope with the severe farm labor shortage impending this season, according to J. H. Wood, regional director of the Farm Security Administration.

A study, from Maine to Maryland, shows that some rural communities are trying to relieve the shortage in various ways. Among them:

Obtain the parole of non-habitual criminals from state prisons to work on farms.

Recruit help from old-age homes and from old-age pension lists.

Have persons on relief dropped or excused during peak planting and harvesting seasons.

Enlist the services of industrial workers on week-ends and after hours.

Defer the draft of bona fide farm hands.

Restore the World War I system of "farmerettes."

Change school and college dates to release students during planting and picking.

Accept the services of boy scouts and other patriotic organizations.

Obtain the use of school buses and other publicly-owned vehicles to transport workers.

Recognize the patriotism of city civilians who volunteer to work on farms.

Obtain for some areas F. S. A. migratory labor camps which appear in this region for the first time.

Washington Herd High for Month

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 26—A retest verified the production of the high herd in January among New York dairy herd improvement associations. Twenty Holsteins, owned by Allen Hand of Greenwich, Washington county, averaged 1824 pounds of milk and 60.8 pounds of butter fat to the cow. Fourteen other herds averaged more than 50 pounds of butterfat in January.

Listed also in the association's records are lifetime marks of cows that produce more than 100,000 pounds of milk or 3,000 pounds of butterfat. Listed in January was a Guernsey owned by Simon West of Coldwater, Monroe county, and Holstein cows owned by R. M. and J. H. Stone of Marcellus, Onondaga county, and by Saltzman farms of Virgil, Cortland county. Saltzman farms herd is tested in the Tompkins county association.

The largest 305-day record reported during the month was 12,636 pounds of milk and 741.3 pounds of butterfat, by a Jersey cow owned by Nellie Quimby of Hamburg, Erie county. Eighteen other 305-day records of more than 600 pounds of butterfat were received during the month by G. W. Talley of the New York state college of agriculture.

He reports that more supervisors, or milk testers, are needed. A training school for them started February 23 at Cornell, and will end March 7. Others interested may apply to the Dairy Records Office, Wing Hall, Ithaca, N. Y.

During last winter 115,000 Londoners were rendered homeless by air raids.

one for the state to assume instead of asking local real estate owners to pay for streets used as through arteries.

"At the present time, motorists enjoy modern highways that carry traffic along at a fast rate but when some of these highways go through city streets, traffic is snarled up and the motorist must frequently proceed at a snail's pace along inadequate streets never designed to carry heavy through traffic.

"We recognize the present emergency and the need to conserve men, money and materials for the war effort," Senator Riley continued, "and my bill therefore does not become effective until after the war emergency is over. If the governor signs the bill, I hope he will, it will create a backlog of public works which will not only be beneficial in taking up the slack in employment but will also be of great benefit to the residents of many cities and the motorists at large."

The following cities will be affected by the bill: Amsterdam, Auburn, Batavia, Beacon, Canandaigua, Cohoes, Corning, Cortland, Dunkirk, Elmira, Fulton, Geneva, Glen Cove, Glens Falls, Gloversville, Hornell, Hudson, Ithaca, Jamestown, Johnstown, Kingston, Lackawanna, Little Falls, Lockport, Long Beach, Mechanicville, Mid-

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS
(By The Associated Press)

High in Camp
Havana—"I think I'll win 30 games this year," said Pitcher Kirby Higbe, who arrived at the Brooklyn Dodgers camp yesterday and ended his one-man revolt against training in Havana. "But I would have been good for 40 if I had been allowed to remain in Miami."

Dixie Walker also arrived yesterday, leaving the Dodgers with only three absentees, Pitchers Whit Wyatt and Jack Kraus, both holdouts, and Catcher Herman Franks, who was permitted to report late.

Early Eyes Clean-up
Orlando, Fla.—Jake Early, the muscular Washington catcher, has his eye on the cleanup spot in the Senators' batting order. As a result, he has come up with a new batting stance which he figures will give him swing more power. Early batted .287 last season and led the club with eleven homers.

Stainback in Uniform
St. Petersburg, Fla.—Outfielder Tuck Stainback, who was traded to Kansas City by Detroit during the winter and was signed yesterday by the Yankees, lost no time getting into a New York uniform. "This is the break I've been looking for," Stainback said as he prepared for his tenth season in organized baseball. "I'll make Mr. McCarthy glad he took me on."

Giants Use Rookies
Miami, Fla.—The New York Giants will not use their pitching veterans when they go to Havana this week-end to open the exhibition season against the Dodgers. Manager Mel Ott has named Ace Adams, Johnny Wittig, Hugh East, Tom Sunkel, Dave Koslo, Salvatore Maglie, John Hubbell and Jess Danna for the two-game series. Veterans Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher, Cliff Melton and Bill McGee won't even make the trip.

Bill Lee in Shape
Avalon, Calif.—Pitcher Bill Lee, probably the best conditioned and most determined athlete in the camp of the Chicago Cubs, also will be the No. 1 hurler today for the Bruins' first batting practice. Listed on the trading block during the winter, the veteran reported to camp in remarkable shape, and expressed a desire to remain with the Cubs.

Star Enters Monastery
Jose Mojica, famous Mexican singer and film star, has left Mexico City for South America where he plans to enter a monastery. Mojica's decision to sing litany instead of popular Mexican songs was prompted by the death of his mother. Leaving Buenos Aires, where he was under contract to a radio station, he returned to Mexico to sell his ranch, stopping off en route home to arrange to enter the Cuzco monastery in Peru.

Red Cross War Fund
A substantial contribution toward the $45,000 American Red Cross War Fund to be raised by the Ulster County Committee will help keep the fighting men, healthy, happy and efficient.

Every State Will Be Represented in Jubilee Basketball

New Mexico High School Joins List; Colleges Also Included for Naismith Temple

Springfield, Mass. (Special to Freeman)—The Naismith Memorial Committee has just announced that with the addition of Aztec High School of Aztec, N. M., latest team to designate one of its regularly scheduled home basketball games as a Golden Ball Game (the receipts to go to the fund which will be used to build a Temple of Basketball in honor of Dr. Naismith) everyone of the 48 states is now represented in the Golden Jubilee of Basketball Campaign.

Aztec High School brings the number of Golden Ball Games near the 1,100 mark. From Maine to Florida and from New York to California, high schools, colleges, professional and amateur club teams have enlisted wholeheartedly in the nation-wide effort to commemorate the name of the inventor of the game. Institutions that do not have teams have gone on record as being willing to contribute to the fund, while those with teams have offered in many cases all or part of the receipts of their Golden Ball games, in the interest of the Temple of Basketball.

This edifice which will rise near the site of the first basketball game ever played, namely that arranged by Dr. Naismith in 1891, will house a museum and Hall of Fame. There will be kept the records of past, present and future cage teams, and there too each year will be enshrined the All-American quintets chosen by officially appointed authorities. The Temple of Basketball will serve to give substance to the ideals and traditions of the past-time which in 50 years has swept around the world, and today is played by the youth of 52 nations.

Among the attractive contests, all of which are links in the chain of Golden Ball games girdling the country, are: Army-Navy, Pennsylvania-Cornell, New York U.-Lehigh, Fordham-Columbia, Duke-P. I., Cornell-Dartmouth, North Carolina-Washington & Lee, Tennessee-Alabama, Notre Dame-Washington U., Long Island U.-Springfield, Dartmouth-Army, Iowa-Minnesota, Drake-Oklahoma A. & M., Kentucky-Washington & Lee. In addition hundreds of high school quintets have registered games with the Naismith Memorial Committee in Springfield, Mass.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Feb. 26 (AP)—Top-rated skiers of the nation will ride Pine Mountain's towering slide Sunday in quest of the elusive 300-foot leap—a feat yet to be achieved in America.

Shooting at the mark will be the big four of American skiing—Torger Tolle, Alf Engen, Walter Bietila and Art Devlin—and two or three youngsters from this rugged mining country where they learn to ski shortly after learning to walk.

Tokle, who holds the official American distance record of 288 feet set in Snoqualmie ski bowl near Seattle in 1941, was conceded the best chance of hitting the mark.

"I'm due for the army this summer," says the Norwegian, "and before I go I want to jump 300 feet. If there's 300-foot jump in Pine Mountain landing, I'm going to reach for it."

Engen, a Salt Lake City veteran who recently was barred by the Amateur Ski Association and then re-instated, came close to the 300-foot mark in a practice jump in the west a few years ago when he covered 296 feet. He holds the

37th Birthday of Rotary International

Participating in the program of Kingston Rotary Club in observance of the 37th birthday of Rotary International on Wednesday were left to right: Charter members, Arthur G. Carr, Dr. Frank B. Seeley and David Burgevin, and President A. P. Modjeska, Alfred Schmid, Evan J. Davis and Joseph J. Morgan. The history of the local service club was outlined and the functions of committees were reported. The growth of Rotary International also was discussed.

37th Anniversary Of Rotary Club Is Observed Here

Kingston Rotary Celebrates Founding in Chicago of Rotary 37 Years Ago by Paul Harris

The founding of Rotary 37 years ago by Paul Harris, a young Chicago attorney, and its development into a vast world-wide organization was observed by the Kingston Rotary Club on Wednesday at its weekly luncheon-meeting held at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

President A. P. Modjeska briefly outlined the work of Rotary International and introduced the members comprising groups which related the activities of the local service club since its organization here in 1916.

Dr. Frank B. Seeley spoke for the active charter members, who besides himself are Arthur G. Carr, David Burgevin and Addison D. Pardee. In giving the salient facts of the institution of the local club, Dr. Seeley harkened back to those days in 1916 when eleven members with the ideal of "Service Above Self" gathered to form the Kingston Club. After its founding he told of its sponsorships of other Rotary Clubs throughout the Hudson Valley and of the lasting friendships that were made in their associations as Rotarians. He also paid high tribute to many of those men, who since have "gone the way of all flesh". He also impressively dwelt on the importance of transforming the eloquent and lofty ideals of Rotary into concrete action today to solve the world's disorders.

Joseph Morgan, E. Frank Flanagan, Emil Boesneck and Sam Scudder outlined the four objectives of Rotary; The promotion of high ethical standards in business and professions. The promotion of fellowship within the club. To strive for those things which make the community a better place in which to live. The promotion of good will and understanding among the various peoples of the world.

Alfred Schmid spoke for the third group giving an account of the Rotary Boys Clubs, the Crippled Children's activities and other projects.

The untiring efforts of Harry L. Edson as head of the Rotary Boys' Club was highly commended. Since 1932, the local club has sponsored an uninterrupted program for the underprivileged boys. These clubs have helped build character, moral and physical well-being for approximately 600 boys. These boys meet every Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the Y. M. C. A. and are guided by an expert instructor.

Evan Davis speaking for the fourth group, comprised of members who recently joined Rotary, expressed their reactions since joining the local service club. He paid a fitting tribute to the charter members, who from humble beginnings carried the standard down through the years.

President Modjeska concluded the program with mention of some of the activities of the local Rotary members in war time, which embraced cooperation with the American Red Cross, the building and maintaining of high community morale, the promotion and encouragement of educational opportunities for all, the conservation of waste materials for national defense, etc. The local members participating in these activities will be found in the armed forces of our country, the ranks of the home guard, tire rationing boards, selective service and all other committees which needed their assistance. In community life, they will be found serving on committees of the Board of Education, Tuberculosis, Infantile Paralysis, Red Cross Y. M. C. A., Boy Scouts and many other charitable and worthwhile groups.

Some houses already have posted notices calling attention to the unavoidable necessity of making changes in delivery procedure and other changes which will result in conserving materials in order to meet the government's program.

So far as possible, deliveries to a certain section, or out of town localities, are being bunched, the idea being to avoid small, or less than truckload deliveries and excessive and unnecessary wear on tires and use of gasoline.

The public is being asked to cooperate and whenever possible to refrain from asking for special delivery of small items that can be carried. Patrons also are asked to make a point of being at home when deliveries of furniture are scheduled to be made.

"The dogmatic attitude of the executive department is strikingly illustrated by the stubborn resistance the legislature encountered in its valiant effort during the last three years to halt soaring taxation and enforce reasonable economy in state expenditures."

Maintaining that the governor's 25 per cent reduction in the state income tax this year and his elimination of the one per cent emergency income levy "would be impossible" without the Republican total budget reductions of $40,000,000 since 1939, Jaekle added:

"The people have only one chance in four years to make a change that will put the state government on its toes. This is the year. It may be predicted with confidence that the voters will not let the opportunity slip."

Republicans Open Thrift Campaign For Governorship

Among the many mercantile houses who find themselves faced by perplexing problems as they bend every effort to cooperate with the Bureau of Industrial Conservation of the War Production Board in saving rubber, oil, gasoline, paper, twine, etc., for military needs are the furniture dealers.

Particularly are the restrictions upon tires and truck replacement parts working a hardship and curtailment of delivery service has become a necessity. The weight and bulk of most of their merchandise requires the maintenance of substantial delivery equipment and every mile saved in the use of trucks means a proportionate extension of the period in which delivery of home furnishings can be continued.

Some houses already have posted notices calling attention to the unavoidable necessity of making changes in delivery procedure and other changes which will result in conserving materials in order to meet the government's program.

So far as possible, deliveries to a certain section, or out of town localities, are being bunched, the idea being to avoid small, or less than truckload deliveries and excessive and unnecessary wear on tires and use of gasoline.

The public is being asked to cooperate and whenever possible to refrain from asking for special delivery of small items that can be carried. Patrons also are asked to make a point of being at home when deliveries of furniture are scheduled to be made.

Another saving instituted, called for by the increasing difficulty of getting certain paper supplies, is ably by reason of a growing sense of proprietorship from long tenure.

"The dogmatic attitude of the executive department is strikingly illustrated by the stubborn resistance the legislature encountered in its valiant effort during the last three years to halt soaring taxation and enforce reasonable economy in state expenditures."

Maintaining that the governor's 25 per cent reduction in the state income tax this year and his elimination of the one per cent emergency income levy "would be impossible" without the Republican total budget reductions of $40,000,000 since 1939, Jaekle added:

"The people have only one chance in four years to make a change that will put the state government on its toes. This is the year. It may be predicted with confidence that the voters will not let the opportunity slip."
